Abortion Costs Less In Omaha Than In Lincoln

By PAITY BEUTLER and DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writers

Although abortions are legally performed in Lincoln, the majority of Lancaster County women who need or choose to get the services seek them in Omaha.

Cost is a major factor in the decision, says the clinic director of Lincoln's Planned Parenthood organization.

While abortions are on the increase among Nebraskans, the number performed in Lincoln since the 1973 Supreme Court decision appears to be stabilizing or even declining.

In 1975, the State Health Department reports, 435 Lancaster County residents had abortions. Which of them chose Lincoln wasn't indicated. Statistics show 80 abortions were performed at Lincoln General Hospital, 73 at Bryan Memorial, 14 at Bethesda. However, women who have abortions done in Lincoln hospitals are not necessarily Lincoln residents.

In 1976 through August, hospital spokesmen reported 66 at Lincoln General, 53 at Bryan, 6 at Bethesda. At this rate the number of abortions done at Lincoln hospitals this year will be greater than the number reported in 1975.

Office Abortions Decrease

The number of abortions Lincoln doctors reported they performed in their offices dropped sharply from 74 in 1974 to seven in 1975.

Three Lincoln physicians who accept referrals of abortion patients from Planned Parenthood are general practitioners Y. Scott Moore and Irving Weston and obstetrician-gynecologist Winston Crabb.

Two or three other practitioners in the county, including one obstetrician-gynecologist, also do abortions, says P. D. Duensing, Lancaster County Medical Association executive head. However, he declined to release their names.

A Health Department official indicated that other Lincoln obstetrician-gynecologists don't perform abortions for their own patients, but make referrals to one of the trio who offer them routinely.

The cost factor is significant between abortions done by Lincoln physicians who use local hospitals and those done by Omaha physicians in specially equipped clinics.

Lincoln doctors charge between $100 and $200 for the dilation and curettage or suction curettage method, with additional hospital and lab fees averaging in the $290-$300 range. Lab fees can increase $75 if a Rhogam shot for Rh-negative patients is required.

Omaha Clinics Charge $250, $185

Two Omaha clinics, the Women's Services Center and the Ladies Center, charge $250 and $185 respectively for the same services performed on an outpatient basis.

Together the two clinics handled 84% of the abortions performed in Nebraska last year. Of the 3,406 abortions statewide in 1975, 2,365 were done at Women's Services; another 506 were performed at Ladies Center.

In each clinic women spend about four or five hours. The actual abortion procedure takes less than 10 minutes, with an hour allowed for recovery.

Before the procedure takes place, the women go through a counseling and information session, sign consent forms and make full payment.

Linda Koch, Ladies Center director, says cash is required because "you usually won't see abortion patients again. It would be very difficult to collect." Many patients give false names or addresses despite assured confidentiality, she says.

"It's difficult to collect from patients once they've had an abortion," agrees Diane Kimmons, Women's Services office manager.

Similarly, payment is cash is requested by Lincoln doctors before the procedure is done or upon dismissal.

A nurse in one Lincoln doctor's office says cash is preferred for his fee because most of the abortion patients aren't his regular clients and many are from out of town. In another doctor's office, a nurse said "most girls prefer to pay cash because they don't want their fathers to get the bill."

Planned Parenthood's Terry Thew says she's had calls from doctors who would be willing on occasion to bill patients, but have had to turn them down because they could not come up with cash for the hospital. "It's almost like a punishment," she adds.

Hospitals Offer Flexibility

But Lincoln hospitals do offer payment flexibility. Lincoln General honors two charge cards, allows a 30-day pay contract or other billing arrangements if needed. The one-day, outpatient fee is $290 average for hospital costs and lab fees.

At Bethesda, the average $210-$225 fee isn't required before surgery; patients are billed just as for any other service. Bryan requires a $300 pre-payment or upon admission for all elective surgery — not just for abortions alone. Patients are reimbursed or billed if costs undercut or exceed the payment. All the hospitals will file insurance claims; the state reimburses them a flat daily rate for abortions for women on welfare, who need make no pre-payment.

Both Omaha clinics will file insurance claims for patients but still require cash the day the abortion is done. However, not all insurance companies will cover those claims, especially for single women or dependent children.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield — the largest provider of group policies in Nebraska — for example, allows abortion coverage under family contracts but not under single contracts. Dependent children, however, are excluded from abortion coverage in the family contracts.

Ms. Thew indicated that often women feel uncomfortable about filing claim forms for abortion expenses for fear their employers might find out. Companies receive a monthly statement of employees' claims filed, but specific procedures are not indicated.

Lincoln's Planned Parenthood refers an average of 10 to 15 patients a month for abortion. Ms. Thew says the majority of the referrals head for the Omaha clinics because they are cheaper and because they are sensitive to the needs of the women.

Also, second trimester abortions, those done after the 12th week of pregnancy, are not performed by Lincoln doctors. Another 15 to 20 women are referred to Women's Services and the Lincoln physicians for menstrual extractions.

A procedure performed up to eight weeks after a woman's last menstrual cycle, the extractions are done in the doctor's office for an average fee of $50 to $75. In most cases pregnancy is never confirmed, thus, the procedure isn't statistically reported as an abortion.

Unarmed Five Back In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — The four men and a woman who carried out the unarmed hijacking of an American jetliner returned here from Paris on Sunday to face air piracy and murder charges.

Their 53 hostages were released unhurt after the five Croatian nationalists yielded to a French ultimatum to surrender.

The prisoners, whose propaganda hijack across the Atlantic championed the cause of Croatian independence from Yugoslavia, arrived in New York under heavy federal and city police security.

Before leaving Paris, the hijackers said they had accomplished their aim: publicity for their cause. "We are proud of what we did," one added.

Their skyjacking had taken them on a 6,000-mile journey while a bomb they left behind killed a New York City policeman.

Their arrival at Kennedy Airport was preceded by another jet carrying 14 of their freed hostages.

One of them, the flight engineer of the hijacked Trans World Airlines Boeing 727, touched off a scare when he came off the plane carrying a pot that authorities said resembled the bomb-in-a-pot device that blew up when police tried to disarm it Friday night shortly after the hijack began.

The flight engineer said one of the hijackers gave him the smaller pot as a souvenir.

A bomb squad removed the pot, and the contents turned out to be a putty-like material. "It was a dud," a police spokesman said.

The surprise of the entire 30-hour episode was the discovery that the hijackers were unarmed.

During the hijack, they had been reported armed with handguns and grenades. Two of them were wired with what they claimed were explosives. The body bombs turned out to be modeling clay.

The French had given them the choice of being shipped to Yugoslavia, the target of their campaign for Croatian freedom, or to the United States, where the bomb they left in a subway locker at Grand Central Station blew up when police tried to disarm it. One policeman was killed; three others were severely wounded.

Most of the other hostages were flown to Chicago, the original destination of TWA Flight 355 when it was commandeered Friday night.

The prisoners, who were neatly dressed, were taken into custody by the FBI at the airport and driven to bureau headquarters in Manhattan shortly after 4 p.m. Each was handcuffed behind the back and driven in a separate car.

They were identified as Zvonko Basic, 30, of New York City; his wife, Julienne, 27; Petar Matovic, 31, of New York City; Frane Pesut,

25, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mark Vlasic, 29, no hometown given.

Basic, identified by Canadian authorities as the leader of the skyjack, and the other men all were born in Yugoslavia, the FBI said. Mrs. Basic is originally from Eugene, Ore.

On the hijackers' orders, four major American newspapers had printed lengthy manifestoes and propaganda leaflets were dropped over five cities — Chicago, New York, Montreal, London and Paris.

After the death of the officer, New York Police Commissioner Michael Codd theorized the bomb may have been double rigged, that is fitted with two separate triggering devices.

But at the airport Sunday, a police spokesman said that while it had been determined that the bomb contained dynamite, it has not been established whether the explosives were armed to go off.

The slaying of a police officer in line of duty is a capital offense in New York and carries a possible death sentence.

Croatia is a Balkan territory which, as a part of Communist Yugoslavia, has had a long history of separatist sentiment and violence. "That was my truth mission," Vlasic called out as he entered FBI headquarters. None of the other prisoners spoke there.

In Paris, Basic told reporters as they were led to a French plane for the flight back: "We are proud of what we did. Don't be surprised if you hear about other attacks in the future. We are defending a just cause, and yet here we are with handcuffs on our wrists."

Surrender came after 13 hours of negotiations at the airport in Paris, during which French Interior Minister Michel Poniatowski finally told the hijackers their choice was surrender or execution if they attempted to harm the hostages.

U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Rush took part in the nearly 13 hours of talks which ended with the surrender at 8 a.m. Paris time (1 a.m. CDT).

French authorities bypassed extradition proceedings, saying they were unnecessary since the hijackers had come to France "irregularly."

The FBI in Washington said air piracy charges would be placed against the five prisoners. The penalty for air piracy is not less than 20 years in prison. However, a section of the law specifies that if a death results from the piracy, the penalty is up to and including death or life imprisonment.

The hijacked 727 and a 707 escort plane landed at Charles de Gaulle Airport about 8:30 p.m. Saturday (1:30 p.m. CDT), after a meandering journey that included stops at Montreal, Gander, Newfoundland, where 35 hostages were released; and Keflavik, Iceland, plus low swoops over London and Paris to drop leaflets.

French authorities immediately ordered it blocked by two vehicles and the tires deflated and gathered a crack antiterrorist army unit nearby. They said the plane would not be allowed to take off again.

One passenger reportedly suffering a diabetic problem and one steward were allowed to leave the plane during the negotiations.

The woman hijacker and one passenger, William Knudsen of Omaha, Neb., went to the airport control tower to talk with Rush and French officials and to get proof the statements had been published and that the leaflets had been distributed.

"They were very nervous and irritated and did not trust the official assurances that their leaflets really were thrown out over London, Paris, New York and other cities," Knudsen said. "So they sent me out to try to make sure their demands were met."

Knudsen never returned to the plane and it was hours after the hijackers' surrender before he learned the hijackers carried neither arms or explosives — "a staggering discovery," he said.

The woman received confirmation in three telephone calls to the United States that the demands for Croatian independence had been published. But she was not allowed to return to the plane and Poniatowski delivered his ultimatum.

Despite Final Dip, Fairgoers Set Record

The attendance at the State Fair fell below last year on the final two days but it still was high enough to give Henry Brandt, fair manager, a new attendance record.

There were 60,000 people at the fair on Saturday and an estimated Sunday crowd of 40,000 to bring the total to 618,500.

Brandt supported his new record with additional data. "We are up 9.6% in ticket sales for people at the gate and up 7.4% in car fees at the gate. Gross income from the carnival, as of Friday night, reached 15.6% above last year's record," he reported.

The Bob Hope show brought 8,326 people to the fairgrounds on Sunday, including a group of 400 from Norfolk that came just for the Hope show.

Two radio stations, KRVN at Lexington and WJAG at Norfolk, brought caravans of buses filled with their listeners to the fair on Sunday.

Fair officials reported that 58,399 people paid to watch the shows in the new sports and entertainment complex during the 10-day fair. "It averages to about 10% of the people on the grounds for a given day," Brandt said.

The final livestock event of the fair was the day-long quarter horse show and the FFA awards ceremony in the afternoon.

The East Butler (Brainard) FFA Chapter advised by Gary Mariele was named the sweepstake winner as best chapter at the fair. The winners are selected on the basis of quality of exhibits, number of exhibits, herd-manship, distance from the fair and a number of other things in a complicated formula.

The Palmyra Chapter won the dairy sweepstakes, the East Butler Chapter took both swine and beef sweepstakes, the Central (Raymond) Chapter won the sheep sweepstakes and the Henderson Chapter won the agricultural mechanics sweepstakes.

Alice Carr of Elgin was named outstanding sheep exhibitor, Teri Svoboda of East Butler was named outstanding Shorthorn exhibitor.

Two FFA members from Waverly shared the honors as the outstanding FFA reporters working in the FFA press bureau at the fair. They are John Bulling and Martin Costello.

Report Slices UNO Equity Need

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

A University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty spokesman has taken issue with a report that contends the Omaha campus is underfunded by more than $1 million compared to the Lincoln campus.

Dr. Henry Baumgarten, UNL Faculty Senate president, drafted a minority report explaining his views this month.

Baumgarten calls the attempt to justify parity money for Omaha "divisive." He suggests, "if the Omaha community insists that all programs at UNO having titles similar to those employed at UNL be funded at UNL levels, then the community should be prepared to pay the extra costs attributable to local convenience and desires."

The minority report went to the NU Board of Regents last week along with a President's Equity Policy Committee recommendation that UNO receive at least $500,000 for the next fiscal year to begin to make up the funding disparity.

The equity committee, a small group appointed by President D. B. Varner, used mathematical formulas developed for the University of Illinois and Wisconsin, and concluded that UNO is underfunded by $1,000,250 when compared to UNL.

The complicated formula includes functions of instruction, research, public service and academic service, but omits student services, maintenance and institutional support.

In his minority report Baumgarten questions the basic assumptions the formula was built upon and concludes that there is no current evidence showing that a funding inequity either exists or doesn't exist.

Baumgarten contends that the differences in the missions of the two campuses should be recognized. He says the Regents and administration should seek adequate funding for both campuses based on these missions.

Baumgarten says comparing UNL and UNO programs may not be valid because the two schools have different missions. "UNL's mission, said Baumgarten, is to 'provide the entire state (including Omaha) with the best education the state can afford at the undergraduate and all graduate levels.'"

The UNO mission "should be to serve the most essential higher education needs not necessarily all the desires of the Omaha community at the undergraduate level and in a few selected graduate areas."

This means, Baumgarten wrote, "if state funds are limited, logic suggests that most of these programs (those aimed at serving the most intelligent and creative youth of the state) will be at that institution at which the most professionally qualified faculty are most likely to be found — that having the responsibility for doctoral programs — or UNL."

And "the cost of superior programs (for superior students) is not low," Baumgarten said. Therefore it may not be feasible to fund all institutions at the same level.

He suggests that a decision might be reached to support Chemistry at UNL at a superior level, and chemistry at UNO at a good level.

Baumgarten also questions the reasons for using Wisconsin and Illinois formulas for the University of Nebraska. He contends that these schools receive much greater federal fund support than does Nebraska and that class sizes may not be the same.

I see no evidence of a careful study of all those factors that might tell us whether or not two institutions are capable of being compared.

After some discussion and some dissent, the Regents last week agreed to seek the first $500,000 in parity money for Omaha for next fiscal year.

But the parity issue will still probably be discussed at a future UNL Faculty Senate meeting, Baumgarten said.

A University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty spokesman has taken issue with a report that contends the Omaha campus is underfunded by more than $1 million compared to the Lincoln campus.

Dr. Henry Baumgarten, UNL Faculty Senate president, drafted a minority report explaining his views this month.

Baumgarten calls the attempt to justify parity money for Omaha "divisive." He suggests: "if the Omaha community insists that all programs at UNO having titles similar to those employed at UNL be funded at UNL levels, then the community should be prepared to pay" the extra costs attributable to local convenience and desires.

The minority report went to the NU Board of Regents last week along with a President's Equity Policy Committee recommendation that UNO receive at least $500,000 for the next fiscal year to begin to make up the funding disparity.

The equity committee, a small group appointed by President D. B. Varner, used mathematical formulas developed for the University of Illinois and Wisconsin, and concluded that UNO is underfunded by $1,068,250 when compared to UNL.

The complicated formula includes functions of instruction, research, public service and academic service, but omits student services, maintenance and institutional support.

In his minority report Baumgarten questions the basic assumptions the formula was built upon and concludes that there is no current evidence showing that a funding inequity either exists or doesn't exist.

Baumgarten contends that the differences in the missions of the two campuses should be recognized. He says the Regents and administration should seek adequate funding for both campuses based on these missions.

Baumgarten says comparing UNL and UNO programs may not be valid because the two schools have different missions.

UNL's mission, said Baumgarten, is to "provide the entire state (including Omaha) with the best education the state can afford at the undergraduate and all graduate levels."

The UNO mission "should be to serve the most essential higher education needs (not necessarily all the desires) of the Omaha community at the undergraduate level and in a few selected graduate areas."

This means, Baumgarten wrote, "if state funds are limited, logic suggests that most of these programs (those aimed at serving the most intelligent and creative youth of the state) will be at that institution at which the most professionally qualified faculty are most likely to be found — that having the responsibility for doctoral programs — or UNL."

And "the cost of superior programs (for superior students) is not low," Baumgarten said. Therefore it may not be feasible to fund all institutions at the same level.

He suggests that a decision might be reached to support Chemistry at UNL at a "superior level" and chemistry at UNO at a "good level."

Baumgarten also questions the reasons for using Wisconsin and Illinois formulas for the University of Nebraska. He contends that these schools receive much greater federal fund support than does Nebraska and that class sizes may not be the same.

"I see no evidence of a careful study of all those factors that might tell us whether or not two institutions are capable of being compared."

After some discussion and some dissent, the Regents last week agreed to seek the first $500,000 in parity money for Omaha for next fiscal year.

But the parity issue will still probably be discussed at a future UNL Faculty Senate meeting, Baumgarten said.

Man Charged In Kennedy Plot Says Offer Was $30,000

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — One of three persons charged with conspiring to murder Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Sunday he was offered $30,000 to participate in a plot to kill the sole surviving Kennedy brother.

An official police spokesman said, meanwhile, that it was unclear whether the alleged plot was "idle boasting or really serious." A top police official who asked not to be identified warned that it might all be "idle, drunken talk."

Robert E. White, 42, listed as a resident of the Salvation Army's Rehabilitation Center here, was held in lieu of $50,000 bail at the city jail.

Sandra R. Rondeau, 37, of Westfield, and David J. King, 31, of Springfield, were released on personal recognizance Saturday by a District Court clerk. Earlier, their bail had been set at $50,000 each.

All three were to appear in Springfield District Court on Monday.

King was staying at a small white frame house with his former wife. Describing himself in a telephone interview as a self-employed radio and television repairman, King said he met White on Aug. 8 at the Salvation Army center and two days later was offered a chance by White to make "big money."

King quoted White as saying, "You can make $30,000 altogether. All you have to do is kill U.S. Sen. Kennedy. . . . You get $5,000 down and after the job you get $25,000."

Mrs. Rondeau, who had worked as a waitress at a hotel where Kennedy appeared, "was supposed to serve breakfast and Mr. White was supposed to walk in right behind her. He was going to shoot Kennedy while he had breakfast," King said.

"I wasn't to do the killing. He was to do the killing. All I was supposed to do was to keep the freight elevator ready for him and make sure all the other elevators were not working," King said.

Kennedy appeared at a fundraising breakfast Saturday at the Oaks Inn. Mrs. Rondeau had been a waitress there but stopped coming to work about a week ago, according to a spokeswoman for the hotel.

The spokeswoman said Mrs. Rondeau had worked there about six months and was a good employee.

King said White showed him two shotguns and two revolvers Friday: "I assume he got them out of New York. That's where the money was coming from."

King said he called police Friday night after White did not keep a subsequent rendezvous, a rendezvous he did not explain.

He also said he feared for his life.

King, a dark-haired man of medium build who appeared not to have shaved in two days or so, interrupted the interview to listen to a news broadcast.

He cut short the interview, saying, "I'm sick of talking to all these reporters."

After receiving King's tip, said Detective David Minor, "We checked out the story and information we received implicated all three persons. Whether this was a prank or a serious threat is still under investigation."

What police were told, according to detective

Donald Ladue, was that someone would go into the hotel and shoot Kennedy with a sawed-off shotgun, and that substantial amounts of money from out of state were involved.

The money report was still being checked, the high police official said. King had refused to say in the interview where the money was coming from.

Police said they seized no weapons, money or other evidence. They refused to say whether they had obtained search warrants.

In Boston, Secret Service Agent-in-Charge Thomas Smith said agents interviewed White in Milwaukee in 1975.

"He made derogatory comments about political candidates, although not about anyone in particular. He made drunk, incoherent and rambling statements."

"We got citizen inquiries that said he might be worth our interest," Smith said.

The FBI said in Boston it was investigating to see whether any federal laws had been violated.

White and Mrs. Rondeau were arrested Saturday afternoon at Mrs. Rondeau's home in Westfield, about 10 miles west of here. King was arrested at the Springfield home where he is staying a few hours later.

No one else had been questioned or implicated, Deputy Police Chief Daniel Shea said Sunday.

Kennedy's Boston press aide, Ann Speakman, said the senator was told by state police of the alleged plot Saturday afternoon.

"It didn't seem like any big thing," she said.

Kennedy's brother, President John F. Kennedy, was assassinated in Dallas in 1963. His other brother, Robert, was assassinated in Los Angeles in 1968 while campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Campaigning for re-election to the U.S. Senate in the Boston suburb of Everett on Sunday, Kennedy was asked if the incident would change his plans in any way.

"I don't expect so," he said. "I have no further comment."

GREETING HER FANS . . . new Miss America, Dorothy Benham.

Miss America 'Not Outspoken'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The new Miss America, Dorothy Kathleen Benham of Minnesota, is shy of politics and takes her morals and music seriously.

"I'll be as honest as I can, but I don't feel I'm an outspoken person. I'm just not. That's not how I feel and I haven't been raised that way," the 20-year-old blonde said Sunday, the morning after she was crowned here as Miss America 1977.

Miss Benham, a junior vocal performance major at Macalester College in St. Paul, Minn., and a native of Edina, Minn., captured the title wearing a white halter swimsuit and a white lace sequined gown and with a rendition of "Adele's Laughing Song" from Johann Strauss' opera "Die Fledermaus."

After only two hours' sleep, Miss Benham appeared at a news conference Sunday, wearing her crown and a long-sleeved pale blue dress.

She said young people should take an active role in politics, but that she's politically independent. Miss Benham said she's undecided on the Equal Rights Amendment.

She doesn't believe in gambling, marijuana, women's liberation, premarital sex or abortion. "I was raised in a very strict and old-fashioned way," Miss Benham said.

A constitutional amendment banning abortion would have her support, Miss Benham said. Women, she said, "should be able to control their bodies without abortion."

A boyfriend? "I won't be seeing much of him this year. This is personal and I've only been going out with him for five months."

"I'm basically a very happy person. I don't become angry often. I guess (I do) if someone or something was bothering me for some time," Miss Benham said.

The 5-7½, 120-pound winner said appearing before millions on television didn't make her nervous. "I don't become nervous," she said. "The last time I was nervous was in ninth grade. I had to sing a solo, my first solo. It was 'Oh Holy Night.'"

Miss Benham, who won talent and swimsuit preliminaries at the pageant, has had eight years of voice training and is a featured soloist of her college's symphony orchestra.

Her step-father, Oscar Dahle, is a choir director and former president of the Minnesota Music Educators Association. He's also director of music at the Richfield Methodist Church. Her father died while she was in high school.

Miss Benham hopes to work on the concert stage some day, possibly to revive the "wholesome" entertainment of light operettas.

She won a $15,000 scholarship with her crown Saturday night and goes to New York City on Monday morning to begin Miss America's annual tour of bookings that are expected to earn her at least $50,000.

Tammy Godin, Miss America 1976, earned $53,000 during her reign, which pageant officials said is low for a winner. They said Miss Godin's statements in favor of the legislation of marijuana may have hurt her bookings.

Miss Benham said she wouldn't jeopardize her earnings by making controversial statements.

74 Dairy Cows Take Wing For Iran

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) — An airliner with 74 passengers flew from Sioux Falls on Sunday offering no tea, no coffee, but plenty of milk. Aboard were 74 dairy cows, each bearing a calf and headed for Iran.

They are the first of several thousand cattle destined for Iran, where South Dakota farmers found the animals would be welcomed with government backing and higher prices than they can get in the United States.

Iran, with 34 million people, can use 200,000 breeding cows immediately, said Joe Morris of Rapid City, a rancher and president of American Farm Products International Inc., which is exporting the cattle.

"And Iran is just one country. The market is very viable."

AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION MAINTENANCE

It is a recognized fact that in many instances, clutch failure in automatic transmission is due to products of fluid oxidation being deposited in the clutch plates causing slippage.

Chevrolet Motor Division recommends that every 24,000 miles or 2 years service, under normal conditions the automatic transmission should have the following services:

- Remove, clean & replace automatic pan.
- Remove, clean & replace suction screen.
- Check vacuum modulator valve, replace if needed.
- Adjust low band, add new fluid as needed (Parts extras as required)

'Beware' Policy May End

Phoenix — "Let the buyers beware," a long-time policy in land sales in Arizona and New Mexico, may now be a policy of the past in these fast growing states. The attorneys general of the two states, working in cooperation with other states and the federal government, have begun a crackdown on allegedly deceptive land sales that they say have bilked mostly out-of-state buyers out of billions of dollars.

Computer Voting Possible

Washington — Voting by computer, telephone registration with voter identification provided by voiceprint and instantaneous election results may all be a part of the presidential election of 1988. Those, and more, possibilities were discussed at a meeting sponsored by the Federal Election Commission and the Bureau of Standards, along with ways to make an electronic polling place foolproof for both voters and candidates.

Reagan Has Leftovers

Los Angeles — Ronald Reagan is faced with a problem not often faced by unsuccessful national candidates — what to do with an estimated $1.2 million in unspent campaign funds. A spokesman for the Federal Election Commission said that Reagan can do anything he wants with the surplus, after unused matching funds are returned to the federal government.

Dole Tired Of Denials

Washington — Testiness surfaced as Sen. Robert Dole once again denied that he took unreported campaign money from the Gulf Oil Co. in 1970 and 1973. The Republican vice presidential candidate's apparent annoyance came as he was persistently questioned about the allegation while on television.

Men May Have Cycles, Too

Washington (Washington Star) — The difficulties that couples sometimes experience at "that certain time" of the month may not be just the fault of the woman's sexual cycle. Evidence is beginning to accumulate that men may experience monthly ups and downs, too — not only behavioral, but physical ones as well.

Viking Dirt Scoop Starts Life Quest

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Viking 2 robot lander began its search on Sunday for chemical evidence of life on the planet Mars, reaching out for a sample of dirt for its miniaturized laboratories.

The little machine working as man's representative was to have made its first digging expedition on the rocky surface of the Plain of Utopia early Sunday.

But earthmen were not to get word of the dig's success or failure until early morning when a communications relay was scheduled, at 1:30 a.m. EDT Monday.

"I can't imagine anything screwing up," said Viking spokesman Nick Panagakos.

Viking 2's telescoping arm was to reach out, scoop up a handful of Martian soil and bring it back for three biology experiments aboard the lander.

Then on Monday, the shovel is to get an additional scoopful of dirt for the fourth miniature laboratory, the one that tests for the presence of organic materials. The experiment is expected to draw the focus of scientific and public attention, unlike during the Viking 1 experiments when the three biology probes received the bulk of attention.

"Viking 1's biology experiments were more positive than negative," Panagakos said, "but there were no organics (carbon-based molecules) found. How can we have life if we don't have organic molecules? They're the building blocks of life."

All living things on Earth are composed of the chains of carbon atoms called organic molecules and, if none are found by Viking 2, the first lander's positive biology findings that nutrients were being consumed and waste products being produced are likely to be explained as "bizarre chemistry."

That might leave the question of life on Mars all but dead.

The instrument designed to search for and analyze organic material in the Martian dirt will begin its search for organics as soon as it receives its dirt sample.

Scientists call the device a gas chromatograph-mass spectrometer (GCMS). The soil sample is heated to vaporize volatile compounds, and the vapor is then analyzed by the GCMS for the presence of any organic chemicals.

Preliminary results should be known late this week.

AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION MAINTENANCE

It is a recognized fact that in many instances, clutch failure in automatic transmission is due to products of fluid oxidation being deposited in the clutch plates causing slippage.

Chevrolet Motor Division recommends that every 24,000 miles or 2 years service, under normal conditions the automatic transmission should have the following services:

- Remove, clean & replace automatic pan.
- Remove, clean & replace suction screen.
- Check vacuum modulator valve, replace if needed.
- Adjust low band, add new fluid as needed (Parts extras as required)

Mrs. Knudsen Was Worried

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha woman had some anxious hours after she learned her husband was aboard the jetliner hijacked by Croatian nationalists on its way from New York to Chicago.

Mrs. William Knudsen said her husband, president of Mid-America International Ltd., left on a business trip to New York Wednesday and said he would be back Friday or Saturday.

Early Saturday, Mrs. Knudsen got a telephone call from a business associate, who said her husband was on the hijacked plane.

She said: "Of course I was very worried, but I knew attempts to reach him would be futile."

Knudsen called from Paris early Sunday to say he was all right after playing a role in the release of the hostages.

Knudsen was the passenger picked to accompany a woman hijacker and a copilot to the control tower of the airport in Paris to talk to U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Rush and other officials about the hijackers' demands.

Knudsen told the Associated Press the hijackers "were very nervous and irritated and did not trust the official assurances that their leaflets were really thrown out over London, Paris, New York and other cities."

Knudsen never returned to the plane. When he learned later that the hijackers carried neither arms nor explosives, he termed it a "staggering discovery."

Mrs. Knudsen received another call from her husband Sunday morning. She said he sounded so tired that she did not ask a lot of "pointed questions about what had actually happened."

"I know he had an interesting few hours," she said.

Reports of the courteous treatment of the hijackers toward the passengers alleviated some of Mrs. Knudsen's worries while she waited to learn her husband's fate.

"I was concerned about someone losing their cool. And I was totally against a plan that the Parisian police were prepared to storm the plane," she said.

Knudsen, 45 and a Lincoln native, heads an Omaha-based international export-import management company. Former Mayor Eugene Leahy is vice president and secretary of the firm.

Hope Wraps Up Fair In Barrage Of Quips

By BOB REEVES
Star Staff Writer

The King of Comedy crowned the final day of the Nebraska State Fair Sunday night, treating 8,326 fans to a barrage of quips and funny stories.

Leslie Townes Hope, better known as Bob, received a standing ovation when he stepped onto the stage of the Sports Complex arena.

"Since this is an election year," he said acknowledging their applause, "I thought you'd like to see a comedian who isn't running for anything."

Hope is reputed to be one of the best ad-libbers in the country, and has an encyclopedic memory for jokes. He proved it Sunday as he spied off gags in the almost stream-of-consciousness technique which is his trademark.

He said he was happy to be in Lincoln, which he described as "the gateway to Wahoo."

He told a series of football jokes, well aware of Nebraska's preeminence in that sport. He said Nebraskaans are used to being No. 1, not like Kansas State where he performed last night.

In Manhattan, (Kansas) he said they held the celebration of the century just because they won a game.

His comments ranged in and out of politics. He talked about playing golf with President Ford: "The security was so tight, when I hit a ball near the tree, the tree moved."

He said, "The President plays a nice game of golf — like a politician, he doesn't really shine till he gets near the green."

"Carter loves peanuts," he quipped. "Just ask his two sons, Skipper and Jiff."

"Carter just went to the dentist to have his teeth cleaned," Hope explained. "He'll be done by October."

While in Lincoln, Hope also was guest of honor at the Nebraska Republican "Leadership Club," which met Sunday night.

Hope poked fun at many celebrities. "Phyllis Diller has had her face lifted so many times she has lint in her dimples," he remarked.

He talked about playing golf with Billy Graham: "He prays and I cheat."

"Once I putted a ball toward a hole (when playing with Graham) and the hole healed up."

Graham, he said, has a tendency to walk on the water hazards. Toward the end of his hour-long monologue, the jokes ran to sex and silliness.

"A doctor told me, 'Don't chase girls, because at your age what you catch wouldn't be worth having,' so I'm changing doctors."

"I can't play in the movies they're making nowadays — I couldn't pass the physical."

And then there was the one about the hippie who told his roommate, "Turn on the radio." The other hippie went to the radio and said, "I love you, radio."

Hope obviously relishes playing to live audiences. He has hit several other state fairs in the midwest.

With him Sunday night was Kelly Garrett, a female vocalist who sang jazzy, torchy tunes and plugged her latest record album.

She sang with much emotion and broad gestures, her voice often getting lost somewhere in the speaker system.

'Jamie' Rockefeller Hospitalized

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — John "Jamie" Rockefeller, 7, son of West Virginia's Democratic gubernatorial nominee, remained hospitalized Sunday with a concussion suffered when his bicycle was hit by a car.

A hospital spokesman said the boy was "doing very well" and was in satisfactory condition.

The son of John D. "Jay" Rockefeller IV was injured late Saturday when he was struck by a compact car police said was driven by Robert E. Thaw, 16. No charges were filed.

Thaw's father, William P. Thaw, was deputy secretary of state under Rockefeller when Rockefeller was secretary of state in 1968-72.

At the time of the accident, Rockefeller was at a party fund raising dinner at the Braxton County Armory.

Jaworski Says Tape Erasure Narrowed To Three Persons

New York (AP) — Former special prosecutor Leon Jaworski implies in an interview that only former President Richard M. Nixon or his personal aide could have erased an 18½-minute segment in a key Watergate tape.

In an interview taped for showing Sunday on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes," Jaworski was asked if he knew who erased the crucial segment of a conversation between Nixon and his chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman. The conversation took place several days after the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

"In my own judgment, it came down to three people," Jaworski replied. "I will not mention their names because it would be unfair for me to do so since we didn't have enough proof to indict any one of them."

Interviewer Dan Rather then asked: "Well, you can't mention the names, but it's obvious that it's Richard Nixon, Rosemary Woods (Nixon's secretary) and Steven Bull (Nixon's personal aide.) Now you say you don't want to mention the names, but are you certain in your own mind that only one of the three people could have done it?"

"I'm not certain, but it's my judgement that only one of them did it."

Jaworski then suggested that Miss Woods probably did not make the lengthy erasure, noting that she had acknowledged during court hearings on the tape gap that she had erased an early segment in the gap.

"But she said it couldn't have taken over four or five minutes, where we had 18½ minutes gone. And very frankly, the first few minutes was not the most damaging part as we constructed the events."

Jaworski said he didn't know who erased the rest of the tape, but acknowledged that he had a suspicion of who had done it. "But I'm not going to say who I think erased the rest of it," he said.

Nixon resigned as president on Aug. 9, 1974 after articles of impeachment had been voted by the House Judiciary Committee. Jaworski said that without the tapes there would have been no case against him but said he believed Nixon did not destroy the tapes because "he thought that some day he could sell these tape recordings for large sums of money."

Agents Worth $1 Million Each

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A former Israeli secret service chief says Israel once offered Egypt $1 million for each of four espionage agents captured in Cairo and also tried to negotiate their release through such figures as the Pope, Francisco Franco, Indira Gandhi and Marshal Tito.

The four were finally returned in 1968 in exchange for release of 5,000 Egyptian prisoners captured in the 1967 Middle East War, said Meir Amit, the official who arranged the return.

The Israeli agents had been jailed in Cairo in 1964 for their part in a bungled sabotage operation that has since been named Israel's "Bay of Pigs" after a failed U.S.-sponsored attempt to land anti-Castro forces in Cuba. Over the years, various Israelis have dragged the affair into politics. Amit and former Defense Minister Moshe Dayan are currently feuding over it.

Amit said the Israeli agents were assigned to bomb American buildings in Egypt with twin aims — wrecking U.S.-Egyptian relations by making the bombs look like the work of Moslem fanatics, and persuading the British occupation force that soon would withdraw that Egypt was too unstable to govern itself.

Some of those caught were executed in Egypt and the others were given long prison sentences.

Amit said in a weekend television interview Friday that the Israeli government offered Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser $1 million for each spy but the offer was not taken up.

Later, he said, futile approaches to get the agents back were attempted to the Pope, Spanish leader Franco, Indian Prime Minister Gandhi and Yugoslav President Tito.

The 1967 war provided a fresh opportunity when Israel had 5,000 Egyptian prisoners, including several generals, to trade for just a few dozen Israeli POWs.

Nasser again refused to free the agents and Dayan favored abandoning the demand for their release, Amit said.

More To Make More Than $15,000

New York (UPI) — Families with annual income under $15,000 will decline from 31 million currently to 25 million in the next decade, according to a Conference Board projection. The group says those with incomes of $25,000 or more will increase — from eight million now to some 20 million in the next 10 years.

This course can be taught to industry or civic groups at "Group rates" upon request. Be sure to attend whichever free orientation that fits best in your schedule.

Toothbrushing Is Favorite Class

Columbus, Ohio (UPI) — One of the most popular courses in four elementary schools in Appalachia last year was toothbrushing.

That and the demand by more schools for the program has prompted the southeast district office of the Ohio Health Department to expand the school toothbrushing program to four more elementary schools this year.

Dental consultant Dr. James P. Henahan, in a telephone interview from his Logan office, said the results of the first year "were much better than we had hoped for."

"All teachers were enthusiastic, parents even asked to have their children excused for dental appointments and children even reminded the teachers it was time to brush their teeth," he said.

"At first we thought it would be hard to get four schools for the school toothbrushing program," Henahan said. "But once the word got around, more schools wanted it. It's almost like the demand is greater than the supply."

Henahan and public health education consultants Linda Miller and Connie Zsombok went into four schools last year where many of the children had never owned a toothbrush.

They worked with 342 students in the first three grades in those schools, introducing them to a toothbrush and teaching them about proper brushing. Teachers set aside time daily for children to brush their teeth.

This year Henahan has added Rock Hill Elementary School No. 4 in Lawrence County, which has handicapped children, Bundy Elementary in Wellston in Jackson County, Twin Elementary in Ross County and a more affluent Canal Winchester Elementary on the Franklin-Fairfield County border. The enrollment in the first three grades in those schools is around 1,000.

Mexico Fixes Exchange; Floating Peso Rate Ends

Mexico City (UPI) — The Mexican government put a new exchange rate of 19.70 pesos to the dollar into effect Sunday and prepared to open wage talks with union leaders Monday.

Dollars are now to be sold officially at 19.90 pesos each. The new rate represents a net 58% devaluation from the old 12.50 rate.

The government's decision came in the face of mounting demands by labor leaders and businessmen for an end to the uncertainty about the peso's new relation to the dollar.

The peso was "floated" Aug. 31, ending 22 years of a solid and unvarying exchange rate of 12.50 to the dollar.

The decision to stabilize at between 19.70 and 19.90 to the dollar was announced late Saturday by Treasury Secretary Mario Ramon Beteta.

The new exchange rates leave a 1% margin between buying and selling prices, "so as to guarantee a stable level to Mexican money and thus enable an adequate relation between prices and salaries," the secretary said.

Since the peso's exchange rate was set free the currency had remained virtually unchanged at 20.40 to the dollar. Dollars sold at 20.60 pesos.

Our average graduate should read 7-10 times faster upon completion of the course with marked improvement in comprehension and concentration.

For those who would like additional information, a series of free, one hour, orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one half the cost of similar courses. You may attend any of the meetings for information about the Lincoln classes.

These orientations are open to public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible.)

If you have always wanted to be a speed reader but found the cost prohibitive or the course too time consuming... now you can! Just by attending 1 evening per week for 4 short weeks you can read 7 to 10 times faster, concentrate better and comprehend more.

If you are a student who would like to make A's instead of B's or C's or if you are a business person who wants to stay abreast of today's everchanging accelerating world then this course is an absolute necessity.

These special one-hour lectures will be held at the following times and places:

Tuesday, September 14 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, September 15 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, September 16 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. Monday, September 20 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, September 21 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, September 22 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. These free lectures will be held in the conference room of the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel, 13th and M Sts.

If you are a businessman, student, housewife or executive this course, which took 5 years of intensive research to develop, is a must. You can read 7-10 times faster, comprehend more, concentrate better, and remember longer. Students are offered an additional discount. This course can be taught to industry or civic groups at "Group rates" upon request. Be sure to attend whichever free orientation that fits best in your schedule.

Parks Seriously Neglected

President Ford's proposal to add to and upgrade the nation's parks and recreation and wildlife areas has focused attention on how really bad off such areas are at present.

As we've mentioned before, the Ford plan is only the minimum response required to meet the needs of the nation's crowded, underfunded parks and recreation areas. And the plan is woefully late and more than a little deceptive, in that much of the territory proposed as new parkland is in Alaska, land which has been targeted as parkland for years.

At least it can be said that the political year has forced candidates to take park and recreation needs into account. Both the Ford and Nixon administrations and the Congress have neglected the parks. And it would seem that the executive branch should bear the greater blame because it has failed to spend some funds on the parks that Congress had appropriated.

As an example of the neglect, the Denver Post reports that the National Park Service estimates that parks and monuments under its jurisdiction in Colorado need more than $31 million for high priority construction projects to rehabilitate and improve facilities which have deteriorated or which can't meet today's standards.

Included are road improvements, drinking water treatment, sewage systems and the like. These are projects deemed essential by the park service.

As an illustration of the lack of support for park maintenance, the newspaper notes that Rocky Mountain National Park leads the list of the nine National Park Service areas in Colorado with needs of $14 million, but that park was granted less than $150,000 last year for such projects.

And the Post quotes a park service official as saying that the national backlog for all rehabilitation projects totals $2.5 billion. President Ford's plan proposes $500,000 million over a 10-year period for rehabilitation work.

There is, of course, a gap between what the park service thinks it needs and what it can reasonably expect.

But it is apparent our national system of parks, recreation areas and wildlife refuges has been seriously neglected.

It will take more than election year rhetoric and a patchwork program to keep the outdoors in shape.

A Quadrennial Pain In The Neck

The most recent polls point to a horse race between Jimmy Carter and President Ford, just like the experts and Carter and Ford themselves predicted.

A good share of support for both candidates remains "soft," that is not deeply committed, and unforeseen events in the next seven weeks could turn the election around.

One unknown factor in the election is the hopeless candidacy of Eugene McCarthy, the former Democratic senator from Minnesota who performed a great service to the nation in 1968 by challenging Lyndon Johnson on the issue of the Vietnam war.

That courageous act done, McCarthy should have hung it up. But like Harold Stassen, he cannot.

We say that the McCarthy factor is unknown because his current strength, judged by pollster Louis Harris at 6% of the electorate, should dissipate when the reality of its mischief potential finally strikes home. But no one can count on reality breaking through to the McCarthyites; thus his little band of willful spoilsports could play a significant part in the election so far as Carter reaching the White House is concerned. The Harris survey among others shows that McCarthy would hurt Carter, not Ford — that a vote for McCarthy is a vote for Ford. Similarly, in 1968, a vote for McCarthy was a vote for Richard Nixon, even if it wasn't intended as such by one who cast it.

But it is useless to surmise the intent of McCarthy or his followers in 1968 or this year. What it appeared to be then was to insure the election of Richard Nixon because the majority of the Democratic Party preferred Hubert Humphrey. What it appears to be now is an attempt to perpetuate the Nixon-Ford administration out of anger over the fact that McCarthy is no longer a credible and respected force within the party he abandoned.

Ambition and vanity have overpowered McCarthy's reason, to an extent greater than that suffered by most politicians.

McCarthy has a right to run for president as an independent or third party candidate — but he shouldn't be encouraged with votes.

A Curb On Kid Ads

BOSTON — Well, they won't be popping spidermen in kindergarten any more.

The Federal Trade Commission, which moves with all the speed of the continental drift, has finally worked out a consent order that stops the Hudson Pharmaceutical Corp. from pushing Spiderman vitamins to their favorite short consumers: kids.

The drug company had spent $1 million selling children on "delicious and chewable superhero" vitamins, suggesting that they were potions destined to make kids leap tall buildings at a single bound. Now, however, there is a ruling that not only gets the spider-medicine off the tube, but sets a long overdue precedent for advertising to children. The commission actually published their startling recognition that children are more susceptible to advertising than grown-ups. (The commissioners must have finally met a kid somewhere after all these years.)

The pivotal phrase in the FTC complaint is: "Children are unqualified by age or experience to decide for themselves whether or not they need or should use" this product. Implicit in that phrase is the view that kids are equally unqualified to decide on any other product being advertised.

This is a great change from the notion that the Captain Kangaroo set were on their own, or Mini-consumers Beware. That was an attitude prevalent five years ago when ACT (Action for Children's Television), the national consumer group, first filed against vitamin ads. The current order comes from the petition ACT filed last October. The FTC doesn't ban all vitamin ads, and it doesn't affect the request of 17 state attorneys general that they rule out all over-the-counter drug ads between 6 a.m. and 9 p.m. But perhaps that will come. We now have a small string of victories that indicate changing attitudes toward children's television advertising.

As ACT president Peggy Charren said, "This ruling said that children perceive advertising messages differently than adults." This doesn't come as a shock to any of us, but it is the first solid federal agency "admission"; she plans to take that idea and run with it.

Currently there are two kinds of products advertised to children: toys and food. The toy ads generate the "gimmies" for the most expensive products. In a new study, ACT shows that a full half of the Christmas ads are for toys in the over-$12 bracket.

In the food division, they are overwhelmingly advertising junk food, fast food and both. The children's shows are dominated by sugar-coated cereals, candy, drinks, and cookies — with the ever-present Ronald McDonald.

ACT is now protesting one of these commercials, the one for Milky Way that urges, "At Home, At Play, At Rest, All Day: Milky Way." That pitches a rate of consumption that would give Spiderman cavities. "No one would really mind ads to children for things that are good for them," says Charren, "encourage them to eat too many bananas."

The basic problem is advertising to children under the age of 9 or 10, at all. The littler child, the more vulnerable. Pre-schoolers haven't the "age or experience" to discriminate what is good for them from what is rotten. They can't tell a well-made toy from a disaster until it is reduced to plastic smithereens. It is intrinsically unfair, "it itself an unfair practice" (as the FTC said of Spiderman vitamins) to try to sell them, to manipulate kids into a pressure group singing, "I want that, Mommy."

But if the agencies aren't going to ban ads from TV for kids altogether, they have the obligation to monitor and protect them far more effectively than they have. The Spiderman decision should be followed by a string of decisions banning the "empty calorie" breakfasts and snack foods, and the dolls and toys that are three-day wonders.

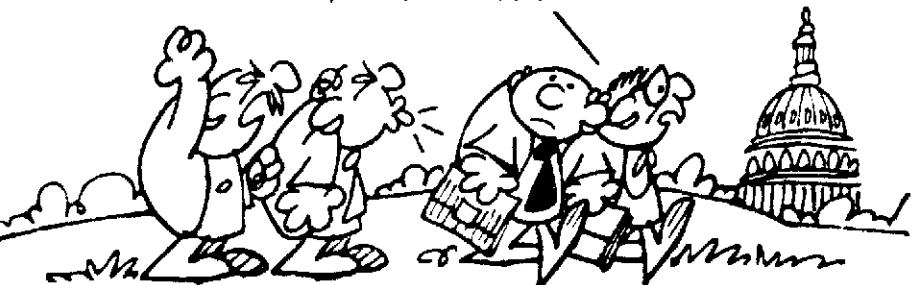

There is, after all, something worse than taking candy from a baby. It's selling candy to a baby. And sugared cereals. And overpriced toys. And teeny-weeny spidermen.

RON HENDREN

WASHINGTON — It is a myth that the nation's two major presidential contenders have agreed to televised debates. They have merely agreed to debate whether or not they will hold debates.

The whole thing started, you will recall, at the Republican National Convention, when the President challenged Jimmy Carter to a face-to-face showdown. Carter responded that he had been planning to say the same thing to Mr. Ford, but had decided to put it off until the following morning.

Then the two got down to some serious debating. The President wanted four debates. Carter had three in mind. The President thinks each one ought to be 90 minutes long. Carter says 75 minutes are enough. The President believes the first encounter ought to be in early September (he proposed today, tomorrow or the next day.) Carter wants to wait until later in the month.

Mr. Ford wants to start out talking about national defense, a subject about which he professes to know a great deal, certainly more than the goober-grower from Plains. Carter wants to kick things off by discussing what is wrong with Washington and the people who run things there; and he prefers to tackle that subject from the relative safety of neutral territory, that is, he won't come to Washington to meet his opponent.

The futility of it all, at least from the voters' point of view, reminds one of the weeks wasted by both sides at the Paris peace talks during which the sole subject of discussion — argument, really — was the size and shape of the negotiating table, whether it was to be round or square or rectangular, whether solid or open in the middle.

But perhaps it doesn't matter. When the debates are finally held — if they are held at all, that is — it is possible that they may turn out to be no more enlightening as to the candidates' positions or capabilities than were the only other such debates that have been held, those between John Kennedy and Richard Nixon.

The only thing of substance we learned from those encounters was that both contenders had mastered the art of using the medium to get across a message that, for the most part, had no relevance to the questions they purported to be answering. The key words in those "debates" were "exposure" and "appearance," as both men fought to fill every allotted second of each answer period with pabulum — positive-sounding pabulum, mind you, but pabulum nonetheless.

When it was over, most judges agreed that the toothy pabulum topped by the cowlick had won the first debate; and that the five-o'clock-shadowed pabulum had won the remainder. (One line of argument is that Kennedy won the match overall, anyway, simply because he needed the exposure much more than Nixon.)

The upshot was that the debates contributed no more to Americans' knowledge of where the candidates stood on the issues than the Paris peace talks contributed, in the final analysis, to the cause of peace.

It would not be surprising if 1976 turned out to be a replay, especially in view of the way this year's presidential debates are getting started. Or rather, not getting started.

KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON — This year's presidential campaign oratory has borrowed the "flip-flop" from the gymnasium, snatched the "waffle" off the kitchen table, and put them both to work in the political arena as supposedly devastating characterizations.

But such tactics can be carried too far, as in Republican criticism of Jimmy Carter's recent economic policy flip-flops and waffles. Actually, the Georgian's shifts combine agility with food for appreciative thought.

Remember, if you will, that Carter started his primary campaign with minimal emphasis on economic issues. Describing himself as a "fiscal conservative," he refused to join other Democrats in supporting oil company break-up, Humphrey-Hawkins "full employment" legislation, bail-out money for New York City or massive national health insurance. Liberal rivals like Birch Bayh and Morris Udall attacked Carter for sounding like a Republican and being almost as conservative as Gerald Ford.

Thus, by May and June, after experiencing primary defeats and close races from liberals Jerry Brown, Morris Udall and Frank Church, Carter changed course. He began to temporarily shade his positions towards the litmus-test liberalism he had so carefully avoided in the early primaries. By mid-July, the shift was reasonably complete.

Then a week after winning nomination, Carter began dropping this liberal economic baggage piece by piece. Anti-business rhetoric was the first casualty. On July 22, Carter met with multi-national businessmen at New York's fashionable "Twenty-One," reassured them on tax policy, and promised to help rebuild oil company and multi-national corporate images. Since then, with only a few exceptions, he has shifted back to more conservative postures.

ITEM: After a mid-August meeting in Plains, Ga., with 16 energy experts, Carter backpedaled in three simultaneous directions. First, he threw cold water on vertical divestiture in the oil industry (e.g., getting producers out of the pipeline or marketing business), also adding that he'd only favor horizontal divestiture (getting oil companies out of the coal or uranium business) as a last resort. Second, and ignoring his previous statement at a Ralph Nader forum that nuclear power should be assigned a lower national priority, Carter announced (with Carolina Light and Power Co. Chairman Shearon Harris at his side) that he would oppose any nuclear power development moratorium. Third, he came out in favor of increased coal production in both the Appalachian states and the Western states. Score three big ones for the energy industry!

ITEM: A few days later,

Carter met with House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman to discuss tax reform, national health insurance and related matters. Moderate-conservative Oregon Democrat Ullman later told an interviewer that Carter's health plans do not match liberal visions and "are much closer to my position than to any other that I know of."

Ullman's proposal (backed by the American Hospital Association) relies primarily on private insurers and locally organized "health care corporations" rather than federal money and control. Premiums are subsidized only for the poor and elderly. Again, a plus for private industry.

ITEM: In an Aug. 23 interview with the Los Angeles Times, Carter admitted that the original Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill "would have had a profound inflationary impact on our economy." The Times captioned the wide-ranging interview by saying that "Carter's leaning towards a conservative economic position seemed manifested in his cautious approach to the proposed Humphrey-Hawkins employment bill, in his extreme reserve towards the possible adoption of wage and price controls... and in his determination to balance the budget within four years."

As of September, Carter's brief tactical embrace of liberal economic doctrine seems to be coming to a well-merited end. If White House strategists focus on this particular plateful of waffles, they may wind up with the egg (or should I say maple syrup) on their own faces. Carter's candidacy has its drawbacks — a clear tendency for exaggeration, apparent power hunger — but his autumn economics appear to be a useful combination of Middle American rhetoric and pragmatic conservative reality.

The Company He Keeps

The following appeared in The Colorado Springs Sun on Sept. 6. I think Nebraskans could very well think about its contents, also:

"Responsible Americans who own firearms, and this includes hunters and sportsmen, should be aware of where Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter stands on gun control.

"Carter and his running-mate, Walter Mondale, have remained fuzzy on the issue of gun control. Therefore, one can judge their stand only by the anti-gun-control company Carter keeps.

"Carter's chief fund-raiser, Alabama's civil rights lawyer, Morris Dee, has just founded an organization called the 'National Gun Control Center.' The group is totally dedicated to banning all handguns. Dee has stated: 'Within five years, we'll break the National Rifle Association.' Dee has been cited as a possible Carter choice for attorney general.

"Carter's advisor on environmental affairs is Lewis Regenstein and he is also the executive vice president and a salaried staffer of 'Fund for Animals,' an anti-gun, anti-sportsman organization founded by Cleveland Amory. Regenstein, also a Georgian, is making a bid to be secretary of the interior under Carter."

Citizens do not have to wait six months to voice their opinion on the bus loop. They can and should deluge their papers, radio and TV stations and the mayor's office with letters and phone calls.

Resistance to the loop is not a resistance to change. It is a resistance to useless inconvenience for bus-riders. Miller's has consistently provided riders with a shelter, benches and attractive trees and flowers. Before opening hours and after closing hours, they have provided an open door. We have had a main street well traveled and well lighted. We now have been provided one slightly dark library corner, one off-beat corner in front of a tavern, one really off-beat open car lot, one condemned, abandoned hotel, and one department store canopy but no open doorway.

We wait for buses in 110-degree temperatures, 30 degrees below zero, 20-35-mile-an-hour winds, downpours of rain, ice, sleet and snow. I suggest our mayor and council members spend the next six months out there with us daily.

For bus shoppers, they have in effect closed the front doors of the business district and told us to "come in through the alley." The number of businesses open at night is not worth the risk of waiting at the mentioned bus stops. And $4,800 shelters would not change this.

The future Centrum was supposed to have buses enter on N Street and exit on O. How many changes in stops will be made between now and the time it becomes a reality? Why have minibuses duplicating the regular ones? Why have a beautiful downtown if no one wants to travel and shop there? If they wanted to eliminate traffic, why not ban the auto and leave the O Street bus route alone?

We still have a deserted O Street, trees that are lighted by high-priced electricity, home appliances that cannot be used because of the energy cost, a Capitol building that cannot be seen unless you are right at the entrance way, mosaic intersections that cannot be seen for ice, snow and dirt. Besides, what's new about red brick? That's the only kind of street we had when I was a kid. Our energy costs and taxes will be so high, we will have to start a migration west.

Our mayor seems to have a deep aversion to hiring resident Nebraskans, using Yankee Hill brick, unemployed Lincoln brick-layers and free studies from our native institutes and organizations. Perhaps we have made a mistake in electing a non-native mayor who does not have our native tendency for conservative spending and taxation (better known as "slightly stingy").

Perhaps it's time to say, "Mayor, please, we'd rather do it ourselves!"

OPAL ROBERTS

We Should Apologize

The success and happiness of the human race depend on the degree of freedom a government established by the people of a nation grants its populace. Man has a right to seek happiness; thus, people in bondage a right to be free, and people of a free country have a right to liberate those in bondage.

BUT, our country is not completely free. We are taxed against our will and governed by laws which stifle the creative endeavors of our ablest (anti-trust laws).

Because we are not free, our country has no right to be involved in foreign affairs, be they wars between allies and their enemies, or uprisings against us abroad, as in Vietnam, Cambodia and Korea. U.S. citizens resisting the government's efforts to force them to fight such battles are, in fact, right. These people should not only be pardoned but offered apologies. May they and all those who have fought in such outrageous wars accept our apology, then strive along with us to bring our country toward that state of freedom in which such acts of liberation will be right.

Mothers Tell Too Much

Mrs. Jimmy Carter recently stated that her sons had both tried marijuana. Her elder son, James, Jr., showing much more sense and class than his mother, stated: "I kind of wish she hadn't said it."

Perhaps she and Mrs. Ford are having a "Remarks In Poor Taste" contest. When I think of Mrs. Ronald Reagan, with her dignified bearing and her sweet smiling mouth (ah!), I could just cry.

PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON — This year's presidential campaign oratory has borrowed the "flip-flop" from the gymnasium, snatched the "waffle" off the kitchen table, and put them both to work in the political arena as supposedly devastating characterizations.

But such tactics can be carried too far, as in Republican criticism of Jimmy Carter's recent economic policy flip-flops and waffles. Actually, the Georgian's shifts combine agility with food for appreciative thought.

Remember, if you will, that Carter started his primary campaign with minimal emphasis on economic issues. Describing himself as a "fiscal conservative," he refused to join other Democrats in supporting oil company break-up, Humphrey-Hawkins "full employment" legislation, bail-out money for New York City or massive national health insurance. Liberal rivals like Birch Bayh and Morris Udall attacked Carter for sounding like a Republican and being almost as conservative as Gerald Ford.

Thus, by May and June, after experiencing primary defeats and close races from liberals Jerry Brown, Morris Udall and Frank Church, Carter changed course. He began to temporarily shade his positions towards the litmus-test liberalism he had so carefully avoided in the early primaries. By mid-July, the shift was reasonably complete.

Then a week after winning nomination, Carter began dropping this liberal economic baggage piece by piece. Anti-business rhetoric was the first casualty. On July 22, Carter met with multi-national businessmen at New York's fashionable "Twenty-One," reassured them on tax policy, and promised to help rebuild oil company and multi-national corporate images. Since then, with only a few exceptions, he has shifted back to more conservative postures.

ITEM: After a mid-August meeting in Plains, Ga., with 16 energy experts, Carter backed-peddled in three simultaneous directions. First, he threw cold water on vertical divestiture in the oil industry (e.g., getting producers out of the pipeline or marketing business), also adding that he'd only favor horizontal divestiture (getting oil companies out of the coal or uranium business) as a last resort. Second, and ignoring his previous statement at a Ralph Nader forum that nuclear power should be assigned a lower national priority, Carter announced (with Carolina Light and Power Co. Chairman Shearon Harris at his side) that he would oppose any nuclear power development moratorium. Third, he came out in favor of increased coal production in both the Appalachian states and the Western states. Score three big ones for the energy industry!

ITEM: A few days later,

Carter met with House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman to discuss tax reform, national health insurance and related matters. Moderate-conservative Oregon Democrat Ullman later told an interviewer that Carter's health plans do not match liberal visions and "are much closer to my position than to any other that I know of."

Ullman's proposal (backed by the American Hospital Association) relies primarily on private insurers and locally organized "health care corporations" rather than federal money and control. Premiums are subsidized only for the poor and elderly. Again, a plus for private industry.

ITEM: In an Aug. 23 interview with the Los Angeles Times, Carter admitted that the original Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill "would have had a profound inflationary impact on our economy." The Times cap-suled the wide-ranging interview by saying that "Carter's leaning towards a conservative economic position seemed manifested in his cautious approach to the proposed Humphrey-Hawkins employment bill, in his extreme reserve towards the possible adoption of wage and price controls... and in his determination to balance the budget within four years."

As of September, Carter's brief tactical embrace of liberal economic doctrine seems to be coming to a well-merited end. If White House strategists focus on this particular plateful of waffles, they may wind up with the egg (or should I say maple syrup) on their own faces. Carter's candidacy has its drawbacks — a clear tendency for exaggeration, apparent power hunger — but his autumn economics appear to be a useful combination of Middle American rhetoric and pragmatic conservative reality.

The Company He Keeps

The following appeared in The Colorado Springs Sun on Sept. 6. I think Nebraskans could very well think about its contents, also:

"Responsible Americans who own firearms, and this includes hunters and sportsmen, must be aware of where Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter stands on gun control.

"Carter and his running-mate, Walter Mondale, have remained fuzzy on the issue of gun control. Therefore, one can judge their stand only by the anti-gun-control company Carter keeps.

"Carter's chief fund-raiser, Alabama's civil rights lawyer, Morris Dee, has just founded an organization called the 'National Gun Control Center.' The group is totally dedicated to banning all handguns. Dee has stated: 'Within five years, we'll break the National Rifle Association.' Dee has been cited as a possible Carter choice for attorney general.

"Carter's advisor on environmental affairs is Lewis Regenstein and he is also the executive vice president and a salaried staffer of 'Fund for Animals,' an anti-gun, anti-sportsman organization founded by Cleveland Amory. Regenstein, also a Georgian, is making a bid to be secretary of the interior under Carter."

Citizens do not have to wait six months to voice their opinion on the bus loop. They can and should deluge their papers, radio and TV stations and the mayor's office with letters and phone calls.

Resistance to the loop is not a resistance to change. It is a resistance to useless inconvenience for bus-riders. Miller's has consistently provided riders with a shelter, benches and attractive trees and flowers. Before opening hours and after closing hours, they have provided an open door. We have had a main street well traveled and well lighted. We now have been provided one slightly dark library corner, one off-beat corner in front of a tavern, one really off-beat open car lot, one condemned, abandoned hotel, and one department store canopy but no open doorway.

We wait for buses in 110-degree temperatures, 20 degrees below zero, 20-35-mile-an-hour winds, downpours of rain, ice, sleet and snow. I suggest our mayor and council members spend the next six months out there with us daily.

For bus shoppers, they have in effect closed the front doors of the business district and told us to "come in through the alley." The number of businesses open at night is not worth the risk of waiting at the mentioned bus stops. And $4,600 shelters would not change this.

The future Centrum was supposed to have buses enter on N Street and exit on O. How many changes in stops will be made between now and the time it becomes a reality? Why have minibuses duplicating the regular ones? Why have a beautiful downtown if no one wants to travel and shop there? If they wanted to eliminate traffic, why not ban the auto and leave the O Street bus route alone?

We will soon have a deserted O Street, trees that are lighted by high-priced electricity, home appliances that cannot be used because of the energy cost, a Capitol building that cannot be seen unless you are right at the entrance way, mosaic intersections that cannot be seen for ice, snow and dirt. Besides, what's new about red brick? That's the only kind of street we had when I was a kid. Our energy costs and taxes will be so high, we will have to start a migration west.

Our mayor seems to have a deep aversion to hiring resident Nebraskans, using Yankee Hill brick, unemployed Lincoln brick-layers and free studies from our native institutes and organizations. Perhaps we have made a mistake in electing a non-native mayor who does not have our native tendency for conservative spending and taxation (better known as "slightly stingy").

Perhaps it's time to say, "Mayor, please, we'd rather do it ourselves!"

We Should Apologize

The success and happiness of the human race depend on the degree of freedom a government established by the people of a nation grants its populace. Man has a right to seek happiness; thus, people in bondage a right to be free, and people of a free country have a right to liberate those in bondage.

BUT, our country is not completely free. We are taxed against our will and governed by laws which stifle the creative endeavors of our ablest (anti-trust laws).

Because we are not free, our country has no right to be involved in foreign affairs, be they wars between allies and their enemies, or uprisings against us abroad, as in Vietnam, Cambodia and Korea. U.S. citizens resisting the government's efforts to force them to right such battles are, in fact, right. These people should not only be pardoned but offered apologies. May they and all those who have fought in such outrageous wars accept our apology, then strive along with us to bring our country toward that state of freedom in which such acts of liberation will be right.

Mothers Tell Too Much

Mrs. Jimmy Carter recently stated that her sons had both tried marijuana. Her elder son, James, Jr., showing much more sense and class than his mother, stated: "I kind of wish she hadn't said it."

Perhaps she and Mrs. Ford are having a "Remarks In Poor Taste" contest. When I think of Mrs. Ronald Reagan, with her dignified bearing and her sweet smiling mouth (shut), I could just cry.

Your Car May Be Just Fine

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

If you're traveling the interstate in Nebraska, be wary of some service station pitches for repairs and tires.

And if you're a woman, be particularly wary since practically all of the reported frauds have involved women being sold unnecessary tires and unnecessary repair jobs at exorbitant costs.

The Consumer Protection Division of the office of Nebraska Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas is investigating numerous complaints from travelers along Interstate-80, who have been "rooked" by disreputable station operators and employees.

Several frauds have been reported in the Grand Island area, some in the Lincoln area and others are scattered throughout the state along the interstate.

According to information available in the consumer protection office, two women traveling from Colorado east through Nebraska stopped at a station because one tire on their vehicle was low.

The one woman reported that the station attendant suggested that she and her companion sit in the air-conditioned lounge out of the heat while he checked the tire.

According to the report, the woman said that when he returned to get them, the car was on a hydraulic grease rack and "you wouldn't believe the condition of all four tires."

The defects had been circled with organic chalk and there were slits, two with nails and one with tread gone in spots.

"I was stuck and he knew it," she reported, noting that he pointed out it was Sunday and that she wouldn't dare go out on the highway with tires in the condition of those.

The service station attendant convinced her that she should buy four new tires which he said had suffered a 40% price increase because of the rubber strike and that he could offer her only white-walled radials at $80 each.

Upon her return home, she learned that tires had been marked up only 8% as a result of the strike and that these tires actually retailed for $42 each.

The woman reported she had reason to believe that her car tires, which appeared in worse shape than some she'd observed in a dump, had been changed or damaged while she was in the station's air-conditioned lounge.

Just prior to starting on her trip from Colorado she had had the tires rotated and front wheels aligned, she said, and no problems were noted then.

Another family with a trailer was "rooked" into buying six new tires that day at the same station, it was reported.

Several other complaints revealed similar instances with one Illinois woman reporting that she paid $126 each for tires which retailed for $65.53 plus freight charges in her home town.

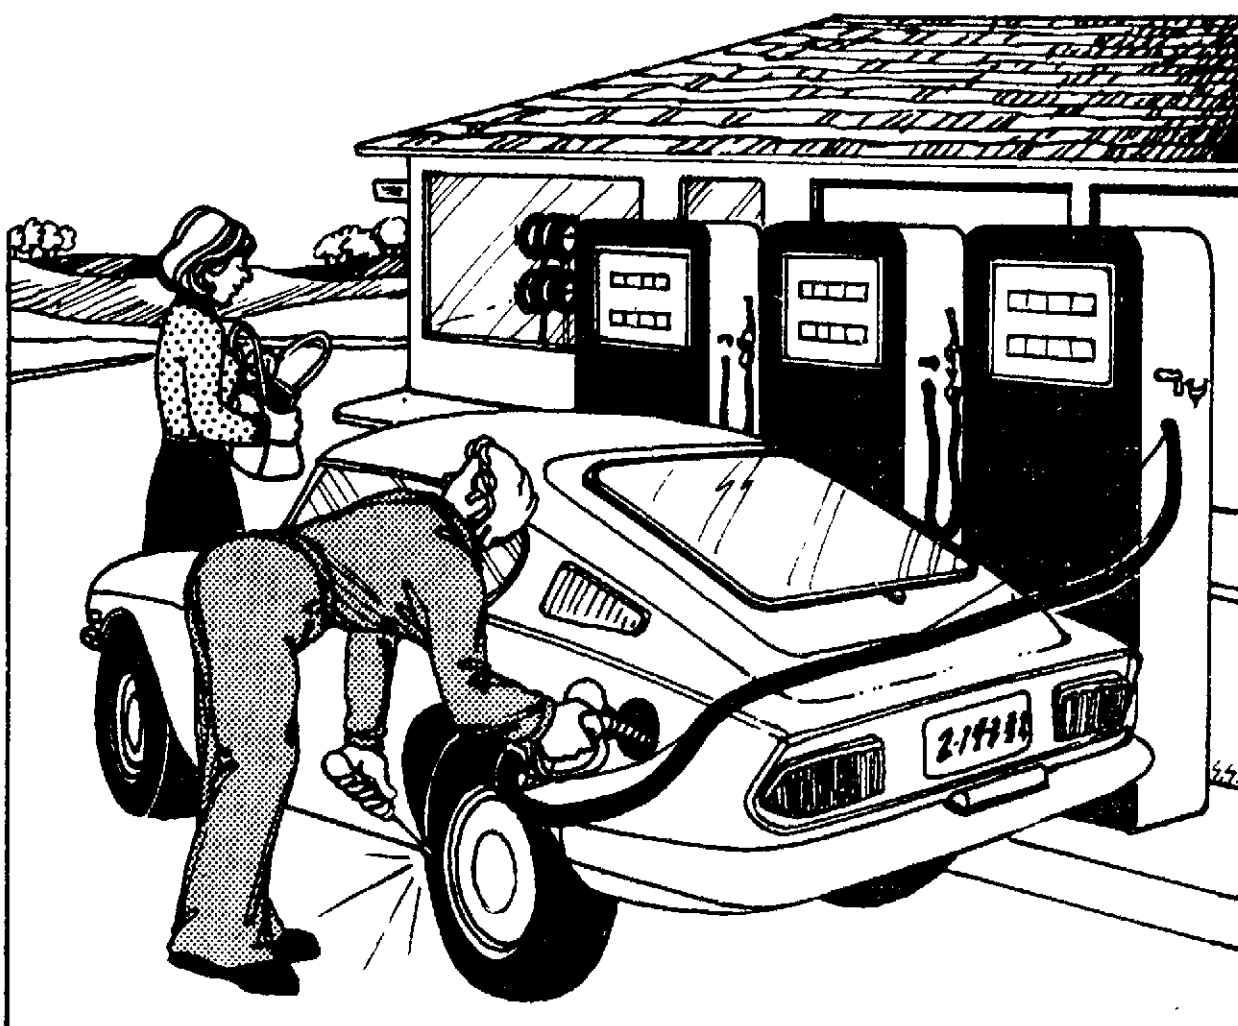

She said she realized that tire prices vary somewhat from one location to another but not that much.

Another truck is dropping spots of oil under the hood to create a cloud of smoke on the pretense something was smoking under the hood.

One Colorado woman reported that when the station attendant at the self-service station was checking her oil she noticed that he kept twisting something in a rag in his hand — "having opened what I believed to be a vial of oil . . ."

She said he then denied any such action and asked her to start her engine to see if the generator light came on.

When she refused to start the engine until after she had finished filling her gas tank, the light didn't come on when she did start the engine.

A Salina, Kan., resident reported that one station tried to charge her $78 for an alternator because her car alternator allegedly was overcharging.

Before making such an expenditure she said she called a mechanic friend at home who indicated she could safely make the trip home without the repair, which she did.

She reported the repair at home cost her $9.38.

And sometimes the station attendants who expect to make a few easy dollars find the wrong person.

One of these just happened to be a mechanic who was told that he had a faulty fuel pump because it was leaking.

The mechanic reported he had "never heard — much less seen," a fuel pump leak where the attendant said it was leaking.

The leak, he said, was nothing more than water from the squeeze bottle used in washing the windshield; and the attendant was hoping to sell him a new fuel pump he didn't need.

The mechanic said he filed a complaint because he was concerned about the many people who might be taken with the "stranded line — but I happened to be the wrong guy."

Nationally known oil companies have indicated in letters to the consumer protection office concern about such practices at their stations and reportedly are making attempts to correct the situation wherever possible.

However, in at least one instance, the disreputable operators disappeared and could not be located by the oil companies

Ladder Safety Stressed By New Industry Labels

Walking under a ladder may not be the only way to have bad luck when using a ladder.

In fact, so many accidents are associated with the improper use of ladders that the ladder industry, in response to concerns raised by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, has begun a vast labeling program to stress ladder safety.

The labels which are being placed on the right, outside side rail of ladders so that they are readily visible to users combine illustrations and bold instructional words to signal various dangerous practices.

The words "danger" and "caution" headline respective labels that are printed in red or yellow, with black type providing specific instructions.

They warn users not to climb above given heights for each style of ladder, not to over-reach or get off balance, not to stand or sit on the top of step ladders, and to avoid use of metal or metal-reinforced wood extension ladders around live electrical cuts.

For straight or extension ladders, a special label is printed with an angle guide that helps to establish the proper slant of the ladder when placed against a vertical support wall.

Also at the suggestion of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the ladder industry has established new markings in feet and inches that tell purchasers how to buy the proper length extension ladder or size of step ladder to reach desired climbing heights.

Under the new program, in addition to listing the size and length designations of step or extension ladders, each style of ladder must also display numerals indicating the highest standing level for that ladder.

The labels instruct users to place all ladders on firm level surfaces to be sure all locking devices are secure, moving parts lubricated, fittings snug and that ladder steps and rungs are kept dry and clean.

PAY LESS THAN 12¢ A DAY FOR A YEARLY MAINTENANCE AGREEMENT

by Ivan Gross
Service Manager of Bryant Air
Conditioning and Heating

You can prevent mechanical breakdowns, get more prompt service, and in general insure efficient heating and cooling comfort year round.

The way to do it is simple . . . buy a Bryant "Maintenance Agreement." For $36.00 a year you can have pre-season check-ups of both the furnace and air conditioner. Fourteen critical areas are checked on the furnace and sixteen areas checked on the air conditioner. At the time we are doing these check-ups, we can determine whether or not your unit is performing at peak efficiency and also detect shortcomings.

SPECIAL OFFER

Buy a Bryant furnace tune-up and energy saving check-up now for $18 and Bryant will apply that $18 towards the $36 cost for a year-around Maintenance Agreement. You get a 14 point furnace check, and pay half of the cost of a year-around maintenance agreement. All at the same time. Call 467-1111 today to take advantage of this special.

When your heating and cooling equipment is operating at full maximum efficiency it will pay you back as you save energy in doing this. Even though your unit has not given you any trouble, it may still need servicing. It's much like a car. Your car may start and run alright but without periodic tuneups it isn't running at top performance. Your furnace and air conditioner operate the same way. Without periodic checkups you may not be getting top performance from them. Our maintenance agreement can assure you that they will get the service check-ups they need. And it doesn't matter what brand you own, we service all makes and models.

In today's economy, one service call can cost you more than $36.00. So it makes sense to invest in a Bryant Maintenance Agreement and get two for the price what a normal service call might cost you.

With a maintenance agreement you become a Bryant "preferred" customer and stand first in line for service. As another benefit you will receive 10% discount on parts, which means added savings.

You get all this for less than 12¢ a day when you buy a maintenance agreement.

You'll have your furnace checked in the fall and in the spring you will have your air conditioner checked automatically.

The maintenance agreement is the best way that we know to insure service calls when you need them at a price that is reasonable. Sound easy? It is!

Requiem For A Smoker

DEAR READERS: I recently said my last goodbye to one of the dearest, most gentle and soft-spoken gentlemen I've ever known — David Brodkey. He was also my brother-in-law, having been married for over 40 years to my sister, Helen, the eldest (and prettiest) of the four Friedman girls.

Dave spent his 66th birthday in the hospital, fighting a losing battle against lung cancer. He was lucky(?). He went fast. Three months.

You're wondering, "Did he smoke?" Like a chimney! Dave had been a three-pack-a-day man for over 45 years.

Didn't he have periodic checkups and chest X-rays? He did, but nothing showed up in his X-rays until he went into the hospital for minor surgery for something totally unrelated to the cause of his death.

Oh, Dave had a "touch of" emphysema and a "little heart warning" a few years back, so why didn't his DOCTOR insist that he quit smoking them? Because his doctor also smoked heavily.

Times without number he would develop a cough and try to "taper off." He would then allow himself only 10 cigarettes a day. But after he'd smoked his limit, he'd "bam" an extra cigarette or two, and soon he'd be back to the old routine. (He often said, "I don't really SMOKE them, I just light them, and they burn in the ashtray.")

Helen and Dave had a storybook romance and an ideal marriage, but their last few years could have been happier

had he been able to quit smoking. Forgive me for washing the family linen in public, but my sister became so disgusted with her husband's "lack of character," that she wouldn't permit him to smoke in the same room with her! (She didn't realize how hopelessly hooked the poor guy was, and that it sometimes takes more than "character" to kick an addiction.)

I have devoted a great deal of space in my column to the evils of smoking. (Perhaps more than some of my smoking readers have found tolerable.) I've also frequently needed those who inflict their habit on innocent non-smokers. (I'm informed there is now substantial evidence that breathing second-hand tobacco fumes is almost as damaging to the lungs as is smoking the weed itself.)

It's too late for my brother-in-law, and for countless thousands who couldn't break the nicotine habit, but will you do yourself (and me) a favor? If you don't smoke — PLEASE don't start. And if you DO smoke, don't quit trying to quit until you've won! I love you.

Opening lead — king of spades.

This deal occurred in the match between Italy and France during the 1975 world championship. Vito Pittala, playing for Italy, got to four hearts on the bidding shown and West led the king of spades.

The contract seems impossible to make — declarer apparently has five losers consisting of two hearts, two diamonds and a club — but Pittala nevertheless made the contract. Furthermore, there was nothing the defenders could do to stop him from taking ten tricks.

Pittala won the spade lead with the ace and played the K-Q of trumps. East, not anxious to take the lead, ducked twice but won the next trump lead with the nine. After cashing the ace, East had to choose between returning a diamond or a club.

He chose to return a club, declarer winning West's ten in dummy with the jack. Pittala then finessed the queen of clubs and played two more rounds of trumps, producing this position, East not yet having played to the last trump lead:

East

South

East realized that if he discarded a club, South would cash the ace of clubs and exit with a low diamond to dummy's ten, thus endplaying East to make the contract.

East therefore discarded the nine of diamonds. However, this did not prove successful either. Pittala, aware of the pressure he was exerting against East, now played the ace and another diamond. East scored the king of diamonds but then had to yield the last two tricks to declarer.

And it doesn't matter what brand you own, we service all makes and models.

In today's economy, one service call can cost you more than $36.00. So it makes sense to invest in a Bryant Maintenance Agreement and get two for the price what a normal service call might cost you.

With a maintenance agreement you become a Bryant "preferred" customer and stand first in line for service. As another benefit you will receive 10% discount on parts, which means added savings.

You get all this for less than 12¢ a day when you buy a maintenance agreement.

You'll have your furnace checked in the fall and in the spring you will have your air conditioner checked automatically.

The maintenance agreement is the best way that we know to insure service calls when you need them at a price that is reasonable. Sound easy? It is!

Requiem For A Smoker

DEAR READERS: I recently said my last goodbye to one of the dearest, most gentle and soft-spoken gentlemen I've ever known — David Brodkey. He was also my brother-in-law, having been married for over 40 years to my sister, Helen, the eldest (and prettiest) of the four Friedman girls.

Dave spent his 66th birthday in the hospital, fighting a losing battle against lung cancer. He was lucky(?). He went fast. Three months.

You're wondering, "Did he smoke?" Like a chimney! Dave had been a three-pack-a-day man for over 45 years.

Didn't he have periodic checkups and chest X-rays? He did, but nothing showed up in his X-rays until he went into the hospital for minor surgery for something totally unrelated to the cause of his death.

Oh, Dave had a "touch of" emphysema and a "little heart warning" a few years back, so why didn't his DOCTOR insist that he quit smoking them? Because his doctor also smoked heavily.

Times without number he would develop a cough and try to "taper off." He would then allow himself only 10 cigarettes a day. But after he'd smoked his limit, he'd "bum" an extra cigarette or two, and soon he'd be back to the old routine. (He often said, "I don't really SMOKE them, I just light them, and they burn in the ashtray.")

Helen and Dave had a storybook romance and an ideal marriage, but their last few years could have been happier

had he been able to quit smoking. Forgive me for washing the family linen in public, but my sister became so disgusted with her husband's "lack of character," that she wouldn't permit him to smoke in the same room with her! (She didn't realize how hopelessly hooked the poor guy was, and that it sometimes takes more than "character" to kick an addiction.)

Opening lead — king of spades.

This deal occurred in the match between Italy and France during the 1975 world championship. Vito Pittala, playing for Italy, got to four hearts on the bidding shown and West led the king of spades.

The contract seems impossible to make — declarer apparently has five losers consisting of two hearts, two diamonds and a club — but Pittala nevertheless made the contract. Furthermore, there was nothing the defenders could do to stop him from taking ten tricks.

Pittala won the spade lead with the ace and played the K-Q of trumps. East, not anxious to take the lead, ducked twice but won the next trump lead with the nine. After cashing the ace, East had to choose between returning a diamond or a club.

He chose to return a club, declarer winning West's ten in dummy with the jack. Pittala then finessed the queen of clubs and played two more rounds of trumps, producing this position, East not yet having played to the last trump lead:

South

East realized that if he discarded a club, South would cash the ace of clubs and exit with a low diamond to dummy's ten, thus endplaying East to make the contract.

East therefore discarded the nine of diamonds. However, this did not prove successful either. Pittala, aware of the pressure he was exerting against East, now played the ace and another diamond. East scored the king of diamonds but then had to yield the last two tricks to declarer.

Poll Shows Carter Ahead Of Ford On Issues

By LOUIS HARRIS

On a test of which man might best handle 20 key issues in the next four years as President, Jimmy Carter runs ahead of Gerald Ford on 12, but is behind on eight in a recent survey of 1,381 likely voters.

On the pivotal dimension of "best inspiring confidence personally in the White House," Carter wins by 48-33%, a margin closely approximating his current lead in head-to-head tests in the Harris Survey.

But President Ford holds leads in key areas that are likely to be cutting edges in the upcoming debates between the two candidates.

—In "working for peace in the world," Ford is preferred by 41-36%, while in the closely allied area of "keeping the country out of war," he leads by 40-35%. On "handling relations with Russia," the President is ahead by an even larger 41-30%, although this edge narrows to 37-34% on "standing up firmly to the Russians."

—On the defense issue, Ford is also preferred for "keeping the military defense of the nation strong" by 44-34%. However, Jimmy Carter takes the measure of the President by a wide 46-28% on "cutting out fat in defense spending."

—On "keeping federal spending under control," the President is preferred by 43-37%, indicating some vulnerability for Carter on the hot spending issue. And on "keeping Congress from spending too much money," Ford leads by an even larger 43-35%. However, on "working with Congress," Governor Carter, a Democrat, wins hands down by a thumping 58-28% margin.

Carter's favored issues are all centered on domestic affairs, including the economy and the Watergate-related confidence in government.

—On "really caring about the unemployed," Carter is ahead by a substantial 58-23%. On "keeping inflation under control," the Carter lead shrinks to a very close 39-37%.

On the issue of "fighting for the consumer's interests," Carter wins handily by 54-25%. In "curbing big business abuses," the Georgian is far ahead by 53-22%, and in "handling labor unions," he is also in the lead by 50-27%. The only economic issue tested on which Carter loses is "persuading big business to invest to make the economy grow," where he is behind by a razor-thin 39-38%.

—In the important area of "restoring integrity to government," Carter holds a wide 48-31% lead. Although 79% think President Ford is "a man of high integrity," nonetheless, 60% criticize him for pardoning former President Nixon.

—On "cleaning up the federal bureaucracy," Carter holds a substantial 49-25% edge. This reversal of the traditional view of Republicans being best suited to pure the size of the federal establishment is working to Carter's advantage. Finally, on "handling the problems of the cities," Carter is ahead by a wide 48-26%.

In most cases, where Carter is ahead, he leads by a wide margin. Where President Ford is in the lead on the issues, it is by a much smaller margin. However, it must be pointed out that the voters polled by the Harris Survey put Carter into a 14-point, 53-39% lead.

Tests by doctors on hundreds upon hundreds of patients showed this to be true in many cases. The medication the doctors used was Preparation H — the same Preparation H you can get without a prescription. Ointment or suppositories.

FFA Exhibit Shows Farm Shop

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor
Future Farmers of America members are young men and women who are aiming at a career in agriculture by taking vocational agriculture courses in high school.

A part of any good farm operation is a farm shop, where the skilled jack-of-all-trades farmer can repair equipment and often build his own machines.

The State Fair FFA exhibit included 218 items ranging from a ready-to-hang barn door, branding irons and pickup racks to a heavy duty farm equipment trailer, all made by the youngsters themselves in FFA projects.

"Most schools have managed to include some kind of a shop program as a part of their vocational agriculture courses. One of the best is at Henderson but there are 29 schools that have an exhibit of some kind at the fair," said Allan Blezek, a member of the agricultural education faculty at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The skills demonstrated in the equipment will help cut costs on the farms of the future. One particularly impressive piece of equipment was a hog hauler that had three gates for easy loading and unloading.

"The design is tremendous. The quality of the work is excellent at all welds and it is strongly built," said Blezek.

The hog mover was built by Dave Wellman of the Centennial FFA Chapter.

Another impressive project was a gooseneck trailer for hauling equipment or hay, built by Bob Gibson of Henderson.

The trailer has three wheels on each side, an immense wooden deck for moving machinery or hay and a fifth wheel so it can be towed by a pickup.

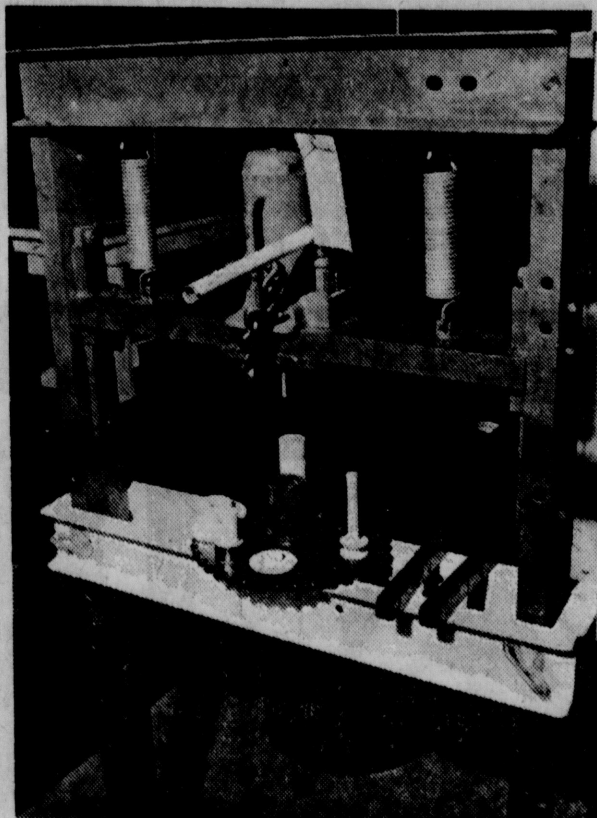

Another project that saved a lot of money for its builder is a hydraulic press built by Chris Tepol of Prague. The press is designed to push shafts out of gears and other similar jobs in a farm shop. Tepol even built several dies to use with his machine.

"We don't get into what it cost to make the item but on the farm this is certainly a factor. Here we emphasize safety in construction, the quality of the welding, the design and things like that," Blezek said.

Duane Murdoch of Nehawka produced a huge red farm equipment trailer that tilts backward in an almost perfect balance to ease the loading of machinery.

"He got the iron from an abandoned rock quarry and made almost the entire trailer from this iron. It's very well made," Blezek said.

There may well be a future in farming for young men who can cut down on the tremendous cost of farm machinery as a result of the training they receive in high schools across Nebraska.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Farm organization newsletters tend to reveal some interesting facts of life the general public ought to be aware of.

The Farmers Union newsletter notes that the farm plank and the export plank of the Republican Party platform carry considerable differences. The farm plank indicates no ban on farm exports while the export plank indicates there would be some "controls" over exports based on irregular sales to the Soviets and others.

The value of such platforms is often debated, with their supporters claiming they are followed 75% or more of the time. Opponents often claim they mean nothing.

As usual, the truth is probably somewhere between those extremes. How to figure it out when two planks in the same party platform say different things hasn't been discussed that much.

The Farm Bureau newspaper reports a survey on the cost of shipping subsidies that ought to be read by everyone. It seems that the seafarers union has been clamoring for increased subsidies for their workers on U.S.-flag ships.

The Farm Bureau study indicates this subsidy already costs the U.S. taxpayer $22,000 per worker or $44,000 per job.

The total cost of the subsidy is about $600 million, of which 11 companies get $400 million.

The subsidies provide about 9,000 jobs for about 18,000 workers, a work force which has been cut in half since 1960.

Farm Bureau notes subsidies haven't saved jobs but has increased the cost of shipping U.S. farm products by $125 million and all U.S. products by $700 million.

The figures are those of the farm organization, which also claims that 52 U.S. shipping companies own 706 ships, of over 1,000 tons capacity, that sail under foreign flags where they can hire cheaper help and charge less for moving cargo.

The cannery strike in California is said to have cost farmers $15 million in tomatoes, $11 million in peaches and $4 million in apricot crop losses.

The backlog of fruit to be canned forced the canneries to allocate shipments. Worse, the farmers who picked peaches for canning found a large percentage rejected as overripe.

Many are simply shaking the trees and letting the peaches rot because they cannot afford to take the losses of picking costs on top of losing the crop.

The National Milk Producers Federation newsletter tells of an intense Food and Drug Administration inspection of food handling operations.

It seems that a total of 8,000 FDA inspections are to be conducted before Sept. 30 to take an extra close look at a milk, cheese, processed foods, ice cream and frozen dessert products, just to name a few.

The Western Wheat Associates newsletter, from Great Plains Wheat Inc., notes that Japan will buy up to one million tons more grain than that nation agreed to buy under its current grain agreement with the U.S. The newsletter adds that wheat prices are not good this week because shipments dropped to 20.8 million bushels.

The Sandhills Cattle Association newsletter points to wheat organizations as the way to get a better price for beef.

"Wheat growers have offices all over the world but there isn't one office around the world selling beef," it said.

Newsletters from farm organizations are no better or no worse than other forms of information available to farmers.

People who write them have the same problem all journalists have, trying to figure out what stories to include in the limited space available and trying to guess which will be of greatest interest to the people who read and pay for the letters.

They do communicate an organization's goals and data to members who often are unable to get the particular information from other sources, or simply don't have time to read a lot of material to glean the information they need to know.

Information in some newsletters is worth more than the cost of joining the organization. Most professional farm newsletters used by non-farmers, and some farmers to keep up with agriculturally related information, cost more than the dues to many farm organizations which supply their newsletter free of charge.

Six persons have been killed in traffic accidents in Nebraska so far this weekend.

A pickup accident early Saturday morning 8.1 miles south of Elwood on U.S. 283 claimed the lives of three Colby, Kan., residents. Killed were the driver of the pickup, Twila Brogan, 19, and Marlene F. Drullinger, 37, and Brenda Drullinger, 12.

'Mickey Mouse' In Rules Said Ending

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Charles Thone said Sunday he feels encouraged about the possibility of ridding the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) of its "Mickey Mouse" regulations.

"Extremely encouraging is the promise of Dr. Morton Corn, assistant secretary of labor for OSHA to eliminate what he termed the 'Mickey Mouse' regulations of the agency," Thone said.

The congressman said Corn made a pledge to that effect in a meeting of the Governmental Executive Agency Review Task Force. Thone is a member of the task force, which is dedicated to eliminating unnecessary federal red tape.

"We were informed that about one-fourth of the standards and regulations of OSHA are of a mite-picking nature and would be abolished," Thone said.

He cited as an example of unnecessary action a regulation which described the kind of coat hanger that should be placed in a restroom and how high it should be off the floor.

However, said Thone, while Corn's remarks are encouraging, OSHA's "chief faults are not caused by poor administration. The law, as passed in 1970 without adequate consideration, contains many bad features." He said the Congressional majority has refused to correct those faults and he hopes the 1977 Congress will.

Thone said he has been working for what he termed "Education Inspections" by OSHA inspectors, particularly in businesses.

"The present law provides that if an OSHA inspector enters a place of business, he must try to levy a fine for any infractions of OSHA regulations observed, even though the owners and managers of the business may not know of the regulations," he said.

"This is not right." In the first place, Thone said small family farms and businesses should not come under OSHA regulation. In the second, he said inspectors should try to help educate employers about potential problems rather than fine them.

The congressman said Corn determined most of the emphasis in the past has been on safety and not the health of workers. When Corn became head of the agency a year ago there were 1,050 safety inspectors and 135 health inspectors.

"Because of this imbalance, OSHA didn't detect chemical hazards, such as the Kepone scandal," Thone said. Corn has said no more safety inspectors will be hired.

Middle Class Pays Most Taxes, Candidate Says

Ord (AP) — James Hansen, Democratic 3rd Congressional District candidate, says middle class taxpayers, not the wealthy, have paid for recent huge increases in the federal budget.

Hansen made the comment in remarks prepared for delivery at a Sunday night Democratic dinner in Ord.

Hansen, 33, currently public defender in Scotts Bluff County, said that the direct tax burden on an average family has nearly doubled in the last 22 years.

He said an average family paid 11.9% of its income in direct taxes in 1953, while in 1975 an average family was paying 22.7% of its income in taxes.

At the same time, Hansen said, those with an income four times more than an average family had a tax increase of only 6.8% in the same period.

Hansen seeks to unseat incumbent Republican Rep. Virginia Smith in the Nov. 2 general election.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

It is time to make some solid estimates of fall grain prices from harvest until the new year. We have the September crop estimates and so do the speculators. Some people are still watching the rain showers, but feed grains and soybeans won't benefit much from rain at this late date.

Rain will be a factor in wheat prices, because it will take some good rains to get the crop up and growing. Wheat prices aren't likely to show much improvement above the $3.10 level unless it gets very dry or Australia loses its crop. Some wheat is already being fed, so it is equally unlikely that wheat prices will drop much more. Farmers will probably start selling substantial amounts of wheat at the $3 level.

Soybean prices will zip up to $7 soon, with the $8 mark distinctly possible. Once soybeans cross $8, you can expect to hear from users about the shortage of soybeans and the issue of export controls. The definition of a shortage could change after the election.

Grain sorghum will drop a little at harvest time. It should hold close to or above the $4 level because of losses in Texas due to rain. Exporters are facing tight supplies to fill existing orders. Early sorghum harvests will fare better in sales than the last fields combined.

Corn prices are harder to predict. Farmers are unlikely to accept a price below $2.50. Feeders cannot afford to pay a price above $3. Best guessers say $2.85 but that is just a guess.

It will take most of this coming week for the speculators and grain buyers to settle down after evaluating the crop report and a bit of profit-taking.

UNO Student President To Challenge Beer

Omaha (AP) — Steve Shovers, University of Nebraska at Omaha representative on the Board of Regents, said he will challenge Vice Chancellor Ronald Beer's authority to remove him from office.

Shovers has been placed on disciplinary probation by Beer for allegedly examining university files without permission. Shovers has denied the allegation and asked for a hearing before the university appeals board.

Beer said if his action is upheld, Shovers would have to give up the regents post and also the office of UNO's student president.

However, Shovers said the UNO constitution, approved by the regents last spring, stated that student presidents can be removed from office only by the student senate. He said he was elected by the students and if he is removed it should be done by students.

Shovers said he has been charged with a "relatively minor violation" of university regulations.

He accused Beer of using this as a pretext for removing him because "I have consistently resisted his attempts to take power away from the students and student government."

Anti-Pollution Delay Asked For Bellevue Power Plant

Bellevue (AP) — The Nebraska Public Power District has asked for an extension of time to install a system, which sucks up pollutants at its Kramer power plant in Bellevue.

Spokesman Ron Bogus for the district said strikes delayed delivery of equipment.

The district earlier received permission to violate air-quality regulations until Dec. 31. The new request is for an extension to June 1, 1977.

A spokesman for the district said large amounts of particulate pollution will be emitted from stacks for an additional five months, and thus the request for extension.

Records showed that the plant often emits 1,500 to 2,000 pounds of fly ash and other particles per hour now. With the new equipment, it will be allowed a maximum of 235 pounds per hour.

Naylor Dissatisfied With Report On Drug Informants

By JIM CAMDEN
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln attorney Kirk Naylor Jr. isn't satisfied with the State Patrol's report on its confidential informant program in the drug division. He's surprised that anyone else would be.

Col. C. P. Karthaus, patrol superintendent delivered the report to the Legislature's Judiciary Committee Thursday morning. The patrol had only one copy of the report at that time. Sen. Loran Schmit, Bellwood, chairman of the subcommittee probing drug enforcement, checked it in the morning. Sen. John DeCamp, subcommittee vice chairman, read parts of it over lunch. Other members of the committee will have copies by Monday morning.

At the afternoon session Thursday, DeCamp said the report answered all questions raised in an earlier report by Naylor and his law partner, Dennis Keefe. The committee voted to end hearings on the patrol drug enforcement program; senators can, however, continue investigating on their own.

Naylor already has questions about the patrol's report.

Some of his questions center around Dennis Landrie, a patrol informant, known as a cooperating individual, whose information resulted in two felony drug charges against Bruce Bamford.

Both charges eventually were dismissed. The patrol report says the case was dropped because defense motions and polygraph examinations consumed 18 months; after that period Landrie wasn't sure about his ability to identify Bamford, it says.

"Three months after these buys supposedly took place, Dennis Landrie identified Bruce Bamford in a courtroom," Naylor said. "I know because I was there."

In a later deposition, Landrie said he couldn't make an identification even though Bamford wasn't present for the deposition. But Landrie had copies of his reports with detailed descriptions of Bamford right in front of him, Naylor said.

The patrol also questioned evidence supplied by Naylor in his report that Bamford was in Colorado when one of the alleged buys took place. Naylor points out that more than a dozen witnesses were ready to testify to Bamford's whereabouts before the case was dismissed. If the patrol thought it was a good case, Naylor wonders, why did the patrol's legal counsel move for dismissal?

Naylor also pointed out that the patrol report does not make any attempt to explain evidence on the first alleged buy. This evidence showed Bamford could not have been where Landrie claimed he was.

The patrol report says another informant was working in Kearney at the same time as Landrie without either knowing the other was there. Naylor said this other person is George Rachow, who the patrol admits was a known drug user. Naylor said he doubted if Rachow posed as such a good check on Landrie's activities.

The patrol report deals with Rachow in two paragraphs. In conclusion, it says: "In spite of his misuse of some of the evidence, Mr. Rachow's work was not a waste of time or money."

Naylor said that still does not satisfactorily answer why Rachow was never prosecuted for using cocaine bought during a drug investigation and replacing it with baking soda.

In discussing an informant in the Lincoln area known as CI "B", the report says: "His cases never amounted to much..."

"Which way do they want it?" Naylor asked.

Smith Says Spy Bill Won't Hinder Probe

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., said Sunday her bill to protect individuals from undue snooping into private financial matters does not obstruct legitimate government operations and pledged to make certain that it does not.

"I introduced the legislation to protect the confidentiality of an individual's financial records so that they would be safe from indiscriminate snooping by government agencies," Mrs. Smith said.

However, she said she has received "several expressions of concern about hindering the government's right to know in certain instances." She said some have even suggested her bill could be used by the dishonest to hide something.

"I have been reminded that the honest people volunteer their records so the only ones being helped by this kind of protection would be the dishonest," she said.

While that may be a good point, she said, "to allay these fears I want to say that in addition to providing safeguards to assure an individual's constitutional right to privacy, the legislation establishes a procedure to open records to a government agency 'in pursuit of legitimate governmental objectives.'"

Mrs. Smith said "individual privacy is paramount, but when the government needs information to carry out laws and regulations, its access to the data should not be restrained."

10,000 Will Seek Jobs From Omaha During '76

Omaha (AP) — By the end of the year nearly 10,000 persons will have asked the City of Omaha for jobs, according to Larry Wewel, personnel director for the city.

But, he said the city can only hire a small number of those who apply.

Wewel said the number of applicants probably will be lower than the 12,000 who asked for jobs last year and in 1974, but more than triple the number who applied in 1973.

He said the job application list is an indication of the higher unemployment rate in the area.

Nearly 1,000 have applied for the Police Department, and after a battery of tests 621 were placed on a list of eligible candidates. That is nearly 100 more than on the entire Police Department force now. There are 20 vacancies.

About 700 applied for vacancies on the Fire Department, and 550, including two women, took tests last week. The department needs 12 persons to fill vacancies.

Wewel said other applicants included several hundred persons enrolled in federally financed job training programs operated by the city.

Police Credit Crime Van With Drop In Burglaries

Omaha (AP) — Police are crediting the crime prevention van with possibly driving the number of Omaha burglaries down.

In the year that it has been on the streets, some 19,000 persons have visited it to watch demonstrations and films and hear talks on how they can reduce the chances that their homes will be burglarized.

Also in that year, officials said that the number of burglaries reported to police has declined 15 per cent.

Capt. Ray Gasiak, who has been in charge of the van for the past year, said, "We have to give credit for the reduction in burglaries to a lot of people."

"Successful police investigations and arrests of burglars, swift action by the courts and publicity on the burglary prevention by the media all are part of the reason for the reduction," he said. "But we like to think our van had quite a lot to do with it, too."

Apostrophe Removed

Baton Rouge, La. — The only thing different about Nebraska's football team from Saturday morning to Sunday morning was an apostrophe. Louisiana State removed it from the "We're No. 1" signs carried by Cornhusker followers.

Now the signs read: "We're No. 1," as in past tense. It may take a long time to regain the apostrophe.

The Cornhuskers weren't the only team to have their No. 1 ambitions either dimmed or removed in what probably was the earliest "Black Saturday" of upsets in collegiate football history. If it's any consolation, Nebraska didn't lose a football game like some of the other teams highly ranked in preseason polls. Even though the Huskers had to settle for a 6-6 tie against LSU, it seemed like a loss to players, coaches and fans alike.

LSU fans celebrated the tie as if it were a victory, chanting "Tiger Bait" as dejected Nebraska players filed into the dressing room after the game.

Coach Charlie McClendon apparently felt the same way, judging from this comment: "I don't think this (the tie) is like kissing my sister. I think the Tigers have served notice. Our kids played their hearts out."

Slow Starting Pattern?

Don Purvis, LSU's defensive backfield coach and prime man in coordinating defensive strategy, wondered Sunday morning if Nebraska might be developing a pattern of becoming a slow-starting team in early season games.

It's logical for the Tigers' staff to think that way because the Huskers haven't been an impressive offensive team in the last two season openers, winning 10-7 last year in Lincoln and getting the tie last Saturday.

"It can become a stigma to a team, kinda like having a reputation and keeping it," Purvis said. "If you're not careful you can suffer a mental lapse even before you know it. We really preach against losing that little edge you get in the first place."

Of course, there were good reasons for last year's slow start. The preseason camp had a lot of distractions because of NCAA rulings and new rules and the Huskers played the Tigers without five potential starters.

The Huskers weren't slow starters in Coach Tom Osborne's first two seasons. They hopped UCLA 40-13 in 1973 and the following year rolled past Oregon 61-7. That's fast in anybody's league.

Osborne now has compiled a 28-7-2 record one game into his fourth season. Interestingly enough, the Husker conquerors had to come from behind in the third or fourth quarter in every loss or tie except the Oklahoma game in 1973.

Extra Point Club Meets

Notes and thoughts about Nebraska football:

Osborne will be on hand with an assistant coach every Monday at 11:45 a.m. at the Elks Club starting Monday for the Extra Point Club luncheons, which are open to the public. He'll make preliminary remarks and then movies of the previous Saturday's games will be viewed by the fans.

One subject Osborne most certainly will discuss this time will be the kicking game. It's possible he'll bring along aide Cletus Fischer to explain what happened on the extra-point miss and two errant field goal attempts.

Fischer has his work cut out for him this week. In addition to the kicking game, he's also in charge of the offensive line which failed to perform up to expectations, especially in the second half.

One phase of the kicking game which caused no problems was the punting team, led by senior Randy Lessman. He punted five times for a 39.2-yard average, which exceeds his career average by a tenth of a yard. The punt coverage limited LSU to a minus two yards on returns.

The defensive performance wasn't completely perfect, but LSU still hasn't scored a touchdown despite all the fancy formations. "I'm sure of one thing," remarked LSU sports information director Paul Manasseh. "LSU will not play a better defensive football team the rest of the season. I believe that Nebraska's defense is the quickest I've seen in several years."

Getting to and from Baton Rouge was fun, if you like taking off and landing. My flight started in Lincoln and included touchdowns at Omaha, Kansas City, Dallas, Shreveport, La., Alexandria, La., Baton Rouge, Monroe, La., Greenville, Miss., Memphis, St. Louis and finally home base.

Next week it will be relatively simple getting to Bloomington — nonstop to Chicago and then Allegheny Commuter to Bloomington International Airport, stopping at Gate 1.

I'll be singing the Indiana fight song, which I wrote while covering the Hoosiers: "Born to lose, we play the game in vain. Born to lose, we do it every time. Born to lose, our dreams have brought only pain. Born to lose, and we'll do it again."

Connors Snares Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors, a power-hitter who likes to get his matches over in a hurry, Sunday displayed Job-like patience for over three hours in defeating Bjorn Borg, 6-4, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, to regain the U.S. Open Tennis championship and lay claim to the world's No. 1 ranking.

Borg, the reigning Wimbledon, WCT and U.S. Pro champion, rarely left the baseline, in sharp contrast to his tactics in defeating Ilie Nastase in the semifinals Saturday, as he tried to weave a web around Connors with a tantalizing mixture of moon balls and topspin.

The tactics worked, to a point.

During the middle of the 3 hour, 13-minute match, which started in bright sunshine and ended under the center court floodlights, Connors made several errors on his approach shots, but he then went back to the baseline and played "pat ball" while waiting for an opening to move in with a killer volley.

Borg, meanwhile, was guilty of overhitting.

Both men appeared too tense, so the match never produced any memorable moments. But it was an absorbing contest for the 16,253 crowd. In many ways it resembled a chess match on a tennis court. Although Connors made several million dollars in the 24 months since he last won here by defeating Ken Rosewall in straight sets, Sunday's victory was his first "Big Four" championship in two years.

Baton Rouge, La. — LSU's respect for Nebraska's football team remained high Sunday, but a Tiger defensive coach also conceded some surprise — surprise that the Cornhuskers were a fullback-oriented offensive team in Saturday night's 6-6 tie.

For the first time, perhaps, in the Bob Devaney-Tom Osborne era, Nebraska's I-backs were busier carrying the ball than the I-backs.

The final statistics showed fullbacks Dodie Donnell and Gary Higgs with 23 combined carries against LSU. Monte Anthony and Richard Berns, the only two Husker I-backs seeing action, combined for 22 rushing attempts.

Donnell's 21 carries were three more than Tony Davis' busiest day as a Nebraska fullback (Minnesota in 1974).

Nebraska had no rushing tries from the wingback position against LSU. That could be another first in the Devaney-Osborne regime.

"We were surprised Nebraska did not sweep with its tailback more than they did and it was a shock not to see the wingback carry the ball," offered Don Purvis, LSU's secondary coach who helps with the Tigers' defensive coordination.

Nebraska's propensity to use the fullback trap play was not without foundation, however.

"In the film workdown over the past two games," Purvis said, "you can see Nebraska has gone quite a bit more with the fullback trap play. But it's been the tailback-fullback running the team — in that order — so we were surprised they didn't try to establish the sweep more."

Two other aspects of Nebraska's offensive game plan surprised the LSU coaching staff: (1) the Huskers heavy continuance of the trap play in the second half after the Tigers had adjusted to meet the challenge with a five-man defensive line; and (2) NU's frequent use of two wide receivers in favor of a tight end, causing a dramatic dip in the effectiveness of the running game.

"Of course, injuries and trouble spots may have a lot more to do with the game plan than the strategy itself," Purvis said.

"We were fortunate," he added. "We have tremendous respect for Nebraska's personnel and coaching staff. I'm not saying that to blow smoke. Tom Osborne and Monte Kiffin do one super job. This game is just a little bump in the road for them. They'll iron out their problems very quickly."

Jerry Stovall, LSU's offensive backfield coach, agreed with that assessment. "We actually have more respect for Nebraska now than we did going into the game," he said.

"It was just a classic defensive game," added Stovall. "I don't think it was the offensive teams doing things wrong as much as it was the defensive teams rising to the occasion."

A. J. Duhe, LSU's all-American defensive lineman candidate, took the blame Sunday for some of Nebraska's first half success with the fullback trap play.

"They checked at the line of scrimmage and took advantage of our four-man line," he said. "They ran right past me a couple of times. But we started going to a five-man line and pretty well shut it down."

On occasion, Duhe would switch from right defensive tackle to become the noseguard. When he wasn't at noseguard, middle linebacker Jon Streeter would move up to handle the inside running traffic.

"We played almost perfect defense against Nebraska in the second half," Duhe observed. "I compare it to the time we shut down Alabama to three first downs in the second half when I was a freshman. We lost that game though (21-7)."

"Nebraska's line was really firing out that first half," Duhe said. "They were still hitting hard in the second half, but they weren't exploding. That's a sign of fatigue. I felt we were in better shape. This is a big step forward for us. I know they were upset, but I don't think Nebraska went backward against us."

LSU Player Is Charged

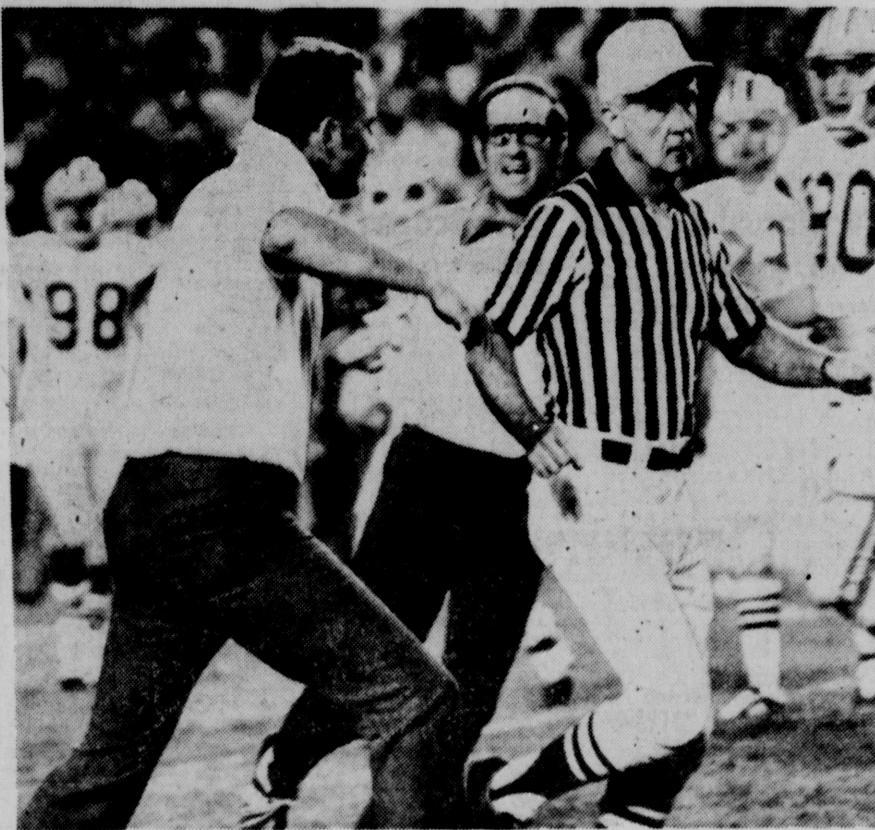

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A Louisiana State University football player, Rusty Domingue, was booked for attempted murder early Sunday, three hours after he helped his team tie top-ranked Nebraska.

Police said he was accused of stabbing Richard C. Connally, 24, of New Orleans in a fight on a street near the LSU campus. Connally was listed in fair condition in a Baton Rouge hospital.

Domingue, 21, from Port Arthur, Tex., was a starting line-backer for LSU and blocked a fourth-quarter field goal attempt Saturday night to help preserve his team's surprise 6-6 tie with Nebraska.

Witnesses said Domingue and Connally got into a fight after the football player kicked Connally's sports car. Witnesses said Domingue pulled a "folding knife" and stabbed Connally once in the upper chest.

LSU Coach Charles McClendon said he would have to discuss the case with the local district attorney before deciding whether Domingue would be suspended from the football team. Domingue was freed on $5,000 recognizance bond.

Nebraska defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin chases referee R. Pete Williams off the field at the close of the game after Ray Phillips intercepted an LSU pass and tried to lateral but the referee ruled that Phillips stepped out of bounds and the game was over. "There's no question but what Phillips was out of bounds before he lateraled the ball," Kiffin said later, "but I was arguing that he was out of bounds before the clock ran out. We should have had one more play." LSU Assistant Coach Jim Collier approaches Kiffin.

Odd Start Indiana Fears NU Tie In Colleges To Hurt In Bloomington

By MARK GORDON

Indiana's football team isn't happy about Nebraska's 6-6 season-opening tie with Louisiana State.

"The tie isn't a good thing for us at all," noted Indiana publicist Tom Miller. "The best thing for us would have been for Nebraska to run over LSU. Now the coaches have a squad that's going to listen. They'll play much harder against us. I'm sure of that."

Nebraska travels to Bloomington to meet coach Lee Corso's Hoosiers Saturday in the Huskers' first trip to Indiana since 1945. But it will be a far different Indiana squad than the one that took the field in Minneapolis Saturday against the Minnesota Gophers.

Indiana lost its top two tailbacks for the season before halftime in a game IU fell behind 25-0, rallied within 25-13 before eventually losing 32-13.

Courtney Snyder, Indiana's all-time leading rusher, suffered a broken ankle and dislocated ankle with less than eight minutes gone in the first quarter. He needed just 925 yards this season to become the Big Ten Conference's No. 2 all-time rusher behind two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin of Ohio State.

Miller said Snyder will undergo surgery either Sunday or Monday in Indianapolis.

"We tried to establish our inside game, but it really hurt our plans and players when Courtney was hurt," explained Corso. "It gave a dullness to our squad. The results have been different against Minnesota the past two years."

"He got 168 and 174 yards in the past two games against Minnesota. We won them both (20-14) last year and 32-21 in 1974," Corso added.

Miller said the Hoosiers' No. 2 tailback, sophomore Darriek Burnett had a ligament tear in his right knee and was scheduled to undergo surgery on Sunday.

He was injured late in the second quarter. Minnesota lost rusher Bubby Holmes with an injured elbow, although he is expected to return before the season ends.

"It was a rock-and-sock 'em game," Miller said. "We're trying to get our team off the ground. But now we're going to have to play musical chairs since we only have one able-bodied tailback. We had three good ones when the season started. Lee said that Suggs (third-teamer Tony) played well."

Suggs, a 5-9, 186-pound sophomore, who is available for punt and kickoff returns, scored Indiana's second touchdown on a two-yard run in the fourth quarter against Minnesota.

Miller said the Hoosiers played well, especially on defense in the opening quarter, a 0-0 standoff.

"We were moving and playing some of the best defense since Corso's been here," he said. "But then, Minnesota blocked a punt and defensive end Mark Merrill picked it up and ran into the end zone for a touchdown."

"The next time they got the ball they marched down for a score and then they made it 19-0 right before halftime," Miller said. "At the start of the second half, they made it 19-7, we would have been right back in it."

Corso agreed. "That blocked punt turned the game around. It gave them a spark."

The Hoosiers, meanwhile, are well aware of Nebraska's strength. The Huskers rolled to a 45-0 triumph last year in Lincoln by accumulating 470 total offensive yards while limiting Indiana to just 97 offensive yards. NU held a commanding 30-6 a first down advantage.

"Lee hasn't talked much about Nebraska yet," Miller explained. "But he knows they've got a great team. They've got talent coming out of their ears. We aren't exactly a humpty-dumpty team, but there's no question we have to be hurt by losing Snyder. We've got a long list of minor injuries from the Minnesota game."

Tickets Available

Indiana sports information director Tom Miller said tickets are available for Saturday's Nebraska game at I.U. Memorial Stadium in Bloomington.

"I'd guess we'll have 50,000 or more for the Nebraska game," he said. "This has been our number one selling game. Even ahead of Ohio State. But I'm sure we'll be able to take care of any Nebraska fans that want to come and see it."

Miller advised Nebraskans to call the I.U. ticket office at 812-337-4006.

Stadium capacity is listed at 52,354 while the 1969 Purdue game drew a stadium record of 56,223.

Houston's three touchdown performance; Kearney rolled by Eau Claire, Wisc., 23-0, and UNO defeated Morningside 38-21.

Nebraska at Omaha's Dan Fulton, who caught a record 10 passes for 317 yards last week, grabbed just one pass in the Mavericks' game against Morningside, but it was a 68-yard touchdown pass from John Smolksky.

Quarterback Gary Seevers scored on a 27 yard run early in the fourth quarter and combined with a Tim Warneke extra point run, Concordia pulled to a 21-all tie with Tarkio. But a drive that put Tarkio on the Concordia five yard line with four seconds left set up Sahlin's winning field goal.

Leading Nebraska Wesleyan 16-13 going into the fourth quarter, Colorado College quarterback Kevin Easton tossed a 68-yard scoring pass to Curtis Moore, and then followed with one for 39 yards to ice the CC victory. NWU scored on a 4-yard pass from Dan Klaus to Gary Milius and a one yard run by Klaus.

Midland's Dexter Brown scored on a four-yard run and rushed for 86 yards to lead Midland to a shutout win over cross-state rival Peru. Brown's score in the first quarter came after a Peru fumble on the Bobcat 38 yardline. Jon Holmes added a 20 yard field goal in the second quarter and Garland Perry hit Grandee West on a 30-yard touchdown pass in the final minute of the game for the Warriors.

Midland, which has lost just two games in the past two years rolled up 326 total yards while holding Peru to 111.

Hastings College football coach Wendell Maupin has never put much stock in pregame and preseason predictions. And apparently his team doesn't either.

The Broncos, picked to finish last in the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, roared to a 20-6 win over Doane, selected to place second, Saturday night in the first of two meetings slated between the two teams.

"I'm making no predictions on our season or even our next game," said Maupin. "I don't think predictions help or hurt anybody so we don't care how the games are picked. We just line up to play football and expect to win."

"We didn't do anything that much different than we did last year and I don't think we had any real surprises," Maupin said. "We have 10 of our 11 starters back on defense and seven back on offense. So we haven't needed to change all that much because of personnel."

The graduation of split end Bob Squires and quarterback Rod Schultz, the best passing combination in state college history, has caused some changes in the offense, however.

"I think we're a bit more balanced offensively," Maupin said.

Sophomore Tom Wissing, who started the last three games for the Broncos, quarterbacks the team and Dave Dirrim, who caught touchdown passes of 34 and 21 yards, Mike Kinney and Tim Ross have filled in the receiving positions. But the major change is in the backfield with tailback Gary Trautman, fullback Ted Schroeder and running back Jim Doty, who sat out last year.

Doty gained 56 and Schroeder 34 in the Bronco rushing attack that needed 131 yards on the ground in 54 carries, compared to Doane's 63 yards total rushing.

Hastings attempted just nine passes, completing four for 63 yards in contrast with last year's team that averaged over 200 yards passing per game.

The Hastings defense also had an impressive showing. The Broncos stopped Doane inside the Hastings 30 yard line three times in the first half and gave up only one touchdown, an 82-yard run by Ted Elm.

Defensive tackle Mark Thurston led all tacklers with nine tackles followed by linebackers Jim Weber and Jack Blum with eight each.

In other weekend games, Keith Sahlin's 21-yard field goal with four seconds left gave Tarkio a 24-21 win over Concordia; Colorado College banked on a 21-point fourth quarter to blank Nebraska Wesleyan, 37-13; Midland downed Peru 17-0; Northern State scored 27 points in the first half and downed Wayne 27-14; S.D. Tech topped Chadron 21-19 despite Bob

Morning Briefing

Opperman Critically Injured

Race driver Jan Opperman remained in critical condition Sunday with injuries sustained in the Hoosier Hundred sprint car race. Opperman, formerly of Beaver Crossing, is in intensive care in an Indianapolis hospital with head and neck injuries. The accident happened on the 52nd lap when Johnny Parsons Jr., leading the race at the time, slid on spilled oil and spun out between the third and fourth turns. "All I'm sure of is I spun out, then Bobby Jones drove into my roll cage," Parsons said.

Track observers said Opperman's shoulder harness was loose after he flipped and that he was trying to get out of his car when Gurney's racer crashed into his. Ex-Lincolnite Joe Saldana won the race, followed by A. J. Foyt.

Other Auto Racing

Cale Yarborough powered his Chevrolet at an average of 77.993 miles per hour to win the $74,365 Capital City 400 National Stock Car race. Richard Petty and Bobby Allison finished behind Yarborough.

Swede Ronnie Peterson won his third Grand Prix of Italy Formula 1 auto race, but defending champion Niki Lauda of Austria, making a comeback six weeks after a near-fatal crash, took the spotlight by placing fourth and extending his lead in the world driver's championship.

With a handle of $62,000 in the first week, Delaware's legalized pro football lottery got off to a "slow start," according to Peter M. Simmons, acting director of the state lottery. But he wasn't disappointed, since betting is usually slow at the start of the season even for the illegal betting pools.

University of Iowa physicians reported that about one-third of a group of Iowa high school football players they examined had suffered neck injuries severe enough to show up on X-rays.

The American League surpassed its all-time attendance record Saturday when 86,727 fans put the AL over the previous mark of 13,433,604. The new total is 13,468,434. With 115 playing dates left, the anticipated attendance for the year is 14.5 million.

The Canada Cup, designed to determine the world's best hockey nation, appears to be doing just as the finals starting Monday pit more than $4 million in Canadian professional talent against the "amateur" world champions from Czechoslovakia.

PIEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Ray Floyd birdied the first extra hole Sunday, beat Jerry McGee in sudden death and added the World Open Golf Tournament title to the Masters crown he won earlier this season.

Floyd, who had to birdie the 72nd hole to gain the playoff, threw his approach only three feet from the gently rippling flag

Assad Invites Karami To Peace Talks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian President Hafez Assad summoned Lebanese Moslem Premier Rashid Karami to Syria on Sunday in the latest effort to end Lebanon's civil war.

However, fighting flared on all major war fronts despite the stepped-up peace talks. Lebanese Moslems and Christians launched dozens of probing ground attacks along the front line dividing Beirut, officials on both sides said.

Tanks and armored cars were used in day-long attacks and counterattacks between Moslem slums and Christian suburbs at Jiah and Ein Rummaneh.

Each side also accused the other of starting random shelling at a neighboring mountain front that includes a dozen fashionable summer resorts once favorite holiday spots for Arabian oil princes.

Hospital spokesmen estimated nearly 80 killed and 90 wounded during the day.

Karami received an "urgent" invitation from Assad to discuss the war, his office said. It was the latest in a long series of pilgrimages by Lebanese Christian and Moslem leaders to Damascus.

Syrian air force commander Maj. Gen. Naji Jamil held two secret meetings over the weekend with senior leaders of Yasser Arafat's Palestinian guerrilla movement at the Lebanese mountain resort of Saufar. The town, 12 miles east of Beirut, is the closest position to the Lebanese capital held by the Syrian forces.

Leftist spokesmen here said the negotiations were designed to ease tension between Syria and guerrillas.

Assad and the Palestinians are on opposite sides in the conflict. The Syrian president sent more than 13,000 troops and 500 tanks into Lebanon earlier this year to try to stop the fighting. The Syrians helped the Christians, who were then losing, turn the tide against the Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies.

Typhoon Damages Japan Isle

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Fran roared ashore early Monday on Japan's southern island of Kyushu near Nagasaki. Police reported 84 persons killed and 41 persons missing in floods and landslides triggered by heavy rains connected with the typhoon over the last five days.

Weathermen said the storm was heading north-northeast at 19 miles an hour with its strongest winds weakened from 89 m.p.h. to 67 m.p.h.

Authorities said more than 240,000 homes were flooded, 152 bridges destroyed by swollen rivers and 52 vessels sunk or washed out to sea.

Damage to bridges, roads and rail tracks paralyzed transportation in parts of Japan.

Farm Equipment Being Marked

Beatrice (AP) — A crime prevention drive against persons taking farm equipment has been kicked off in Gage County.

Officers said it is becoming more common for farmers to return to their fields in the morning and find that their tractor, combine or some piece of farm machinery is gone.

The crime prevention drive involves coding the equipment of each farmer with an identification number. The number would be engraved on the farm equipment in two places and then registered with the sheriff.

Terrorists Kill Federal Police Officer

Buenos Aires, Argentina (UPI) — Terrorists believed to be left-wing guerrillas killed a high-ranking federal police officer Sunday as he stepped outside his Buenos Aires home, security sources said.

The sources said Carlos Maria Baldovinos, chief inspector for federal police in Bahia Blanca, 65 miles southwest of Buenos Aires, was gunned down outside his home in the capital's Villa Urquiza section.

There was no official confirmation of the assassination, which brought to 870 the number of persons killed this year in Argentina's political violence.

'Pessimistic' Talks Point To Auto Strike

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock said Sunday he was "very pessimistic" that the union and Ford Motor Co. could reach an agreement on a new three-year contract before a strike deadline of 11:59 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

If there is no settlement by the time the current pact expires, the UAW will call 170,000 Ford workers in 22 states off the job and force a crippling shutdown of the nation's second largest automaker.

Woodcock gave that bleak assessment during an address to a UAW local in Detroit which is celebrating its 40th anniversary.

Woodcock left main-table bargaining for about an hour to make the speech to Local 174, the home local of the late Walter Reuther, UAW founder and former president.

"A lot of things possibly could happen before midnight Tuesday," he said. "But I'd be kidding you if I didn't admit that I am very pessimistic."

Woodcock said the two sides remain far apart on all major issues despite a full weekend of negotiations.

"It does not look good," he added.

Woodcock's comment Sunday contrasted with statements made last week that while he was not very optimistic about averting a walkout, he felt there still was time to reach agreement.

Bargainers met through the weekend and were to meet Monday in what could be round-the-clock sessions if there were any indications the talks could reach a settlement before the deadline.

But the negotiations gave no indication of any plans for marathon bargaining sessions when they broke up for the day after about eight hours of talks.

There also was no sign that a news blackout was about to be imposed, a traditional procedure when negotiations are nearing completion.

After eight weeks of talks, both sides say they are still far apart on major issues, ranging from a company proposal that workers pay some of their health costs to a key UAW demand for reduced work time.

Other contentious matters involve wages, supplemental layoff benefits and pensions. The union has said each could cause a strike.

Ford has made two contract offers within the past two weeks — the latest on Friday — and has assured the union there still is room to negotiate. Ford's top bargainer, Sidney F. McKenna, said Friday's offer is not "the final word," and he expressed continued hope of resolving contract differences peacefully.

However, UAW President Leonard Woodcock said the latest offer left him with "little optimism" that a walkout could be averted.

Observers noted that such statements are traditional at this stage in the talks and no one would speculate on the outcome of Tuesday's final main-table meeting. A peaceful settlement, if there was to be one, was expected to come in the 11th hour.

Although UAW contracts with all four U.S. makers — covering 700,000 workers — expire at the same time, Ford is the union's 1976 target for a pattern-setting agreement to cover General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors as well.

There has not been a strike-free settlement since 1964, the last time the talks came in a presidential election year. Ford was struck 66 days in 1967, GM 67 days in 1970 and Chrysler nine days in 1973.

Ford's latest wage offer, up six cents an hour from the first proposal, provides an average 5 1/2 cents an hour over three years — about a three per cent annual hike. It also provides another nine-cents in the first year either for wages or new benefits, and continues the current cost-of-living formula.

The company has called its offer "reasonable," noting that the average Ford worker now makes $6.88 in base wages and has fringes estimated at another $4 an hour.

The union has not made a specific wage demand, but says Ford's offer is shy of the "substantial" increase it seeks.

The union also wants a cost-of-living formula that will provide full protection from inflation. The company says the present formula — with general wage increases — has kept workers ahead of inflation.

Ford workers have received wage hikes under the 1973 pact averaging $1.70 an hour, including $1.14 in cost-of-living adjustments.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to reveal your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
